Astro-Trio: Rested, Relaxed

By WEBSTER K. NOLAN

ABOARD THE USS YORKTOWN (UPI)—Rested and relaxed after a square meal, a shower and some sleep, Frank Borman walked out on the flight deck and looked at the Apollo 8 spacecraft, its blunt heat shield blackened and charred.

"It's a beautiful ship," he said.

It had taken Borman, James Lovell and William Anders half a million miles faultlessly, 10 times around the moon and home. It had put the United States a giant step ahead in space. And the next step — or the next — could be an American's on the surface of the moon.

Borman, Lovell and Anders, who splashed down in the Pacific Friday to end their six-day moon flight, were to lunch on this prime recovery carrier today, then leave about 5 p. m. EST and fly to Hawaii, then to Houston.

Go to Houston

No official welcome was planned for their 5 a. m. EST arrival at Ellington Air Force Base in Houston Sunday, but a space center spokesman said "There'll probably be some people there."

The people of both the free and communist worlds paid unprecedented tribute to Borman, Lovell and Anders Friday after the trail-blazing astronauts had returned from the greatest exploration ever conducted by man.

The Apollo 8 crew circled the moon 10 times on Christmas eve. They came back Friday to tell the world what they had learned about the celestial sphere that has intrigued mankind for ages.

Out in Front

Borman, Lovell and Anders had put America out front of the Soviet Union in the space race.

But the accomplishments of Apollo 8 was a victory for mankind, rather than one nation.

President Johnson said the astronauts had led the world "into a new era."

Tass, the Soviet news agency, said the American astronauts had opened "a new stage in the history of space research."

Dr. Thomas Paine, acting head of the National Aeronautics and Space Agency NASA said "man has started his drive out into the universe."

That drive, he added, "will never stop."

Borman, Lovell and Anders, the greatest heroes to date in America's 10 year race to the moon, have a chance to be in on the moon landing itself next year.

A space agency official hinted that Borman, 40, Lovell, 40, and Anders, 35, will be considered along with others to make the historic landing in 1969.

The astronauts completed their fantastic six day voyage Friday, splashing down in the dark Pacific ocean with the same precision that had characterized the trip around the moon.

They came back in at nearly 25,000 miles per hour, a new speed record.

Borman, the usually business-like commander of Apollo 8, exclaimed "Boy, my eyes opened wide on that one."

Dr. Clarence A. Jernigan, who examined the astronauts

on board the Yorktown, said "we saw nothing new or spectacular."

"So far our tests have all gone as expected" and added that he knows "of no reason why the three astronauts could not fly another mission."

Perfect Shape

Jernigan, asked if they were in perfect condition, said "except for fatigue, yes."

Happiness gripped the manned spacecraft team that had backed the astronauts.

Shortly after splashdown at mission control, a giant American flag covered the huge tracking map that had been used to follow Apollo 8 around the moon. The "Star-Spangled Banner" was played over the public address system that had been used to communicate every word uttered by the astronauts.

But Lt. Gen. Samuel C. Phillips, director of the Apollo program, said there would be little time for celebration.

"Our program is moving with rapid momentum," he said, adding that Apollo 9, the first test of the moon landing craft, would probably be launched Feb. 28.

Bullseye

The splashdown in the Pacific was just 6,000 yards from the 25-year-old Yorktown, the prime recovery vessel. For a ship that had been aimed from nearly 250,000 miles away, it was a bullseye for a landing, in keeping with the flawless operation of the vehicle throughout the six days.

The spaceship toppled over in the ocean briefly, leaving the astronauts dangling upside down in their seat harnesses. Borman flipped a switch inflating three balloons and the ship turned upright.

After becoming the first men to enter the moon's gravitational field, the first to circle the moon and the first to travel nearly 25,000 miles per hour, the astronauts narrowly missed being confronted by a problem that has plagued voyagers for centuries—a 10-foot shark.

The shark threatened swimmers around Apollo 8 in the Pacific.

26 Killed as Plane Crashes

By JOHN I. PELLETREAU

CHICAGO (UPI)—A North Central Airlines plane carrying 45 persons and searching for landing room through blinding fog crashed into a hangar at O'Hare International Airport Friday night.

Airline officials said 26 persons were killed and 27 injured.

Not all the casualties were on the plane: A boy's drum and bugle corps was practicing in the Braniff International hangar when the plane crashed through the doors, spewing burning fuel and metal upon them. All eight of the boys were injured; some of their clothing was set afire.

North Central's flight 458 originated in Minneapolis-St. Paul, Minn., and had stopped in the Wisconsin cities of Wausau, Green Bay, Manitowoc and Milwaukee. Then it headed for O'Hare had been diverting some flights for "brief periods" earlier Friday because of the fog, but the world's busiest commercial airport was open at the time of the crash.

The Convair 580 prop-jet came in southeasterly, through mist and drizzle. "It appeared to be a normal approach," a spokesman for the Federal Aviation Administration said later. He said that though the fog was thick, visibility was a quarter-mile with a 200-foot ceiling, within minimum requirements.

The plane settled toward the runway, cleared a seven-foot fence, and almost had landed when its wing apparently tipped toward the hangar. The plane made an "exceptionally severe" left turn while still off the ground, investigators said, and crashed through two large hangar doors.

Fuel sloshed from the plane and blazed. The doors exploded on the drum and bugle corps, flag-bearers for the Vanguard group of suburban Des Plaines.

An explosion blew the plane apart as it skidded to a halt inside.

At first, because of the fog, workers were not certain whether the plane had crashed or landed. They came upon burning, shredded wreckage.

"The men just keep looking through the wreckage bit by bit and every once in a while they find a body," a police spokesman said.

A survivor, Robert Irish, 26, Antigo, Wis., said he was sitting in the rear of the plane. He suffered lacerations and an eye injury, and was taken to Resurrection Hospital, where many of the dead and injured were sent.

"We were coming in and then all of a sudden it looked like the pilot had speeded up the engine and pulled it up," Irish said. "And as he pulled it up, everything went blank."

"When I woke up I knew the plane must have crashed. I felt all around and I felt bodies here and there."

One of the injured drum and buglers, Keith Carlson, 14, suffered severe burns on his back when "a piece of the hangar fell on me, on my back."

"We were marching," he said. "Our instructor yelled for us to get out of the way. I started running. I must have slipped on some grease or something. I closed my eyes and when I opened them the hangar door was all around in flames ... my back was on fire."

The crash killed the pilot and three of the crew members.

The hangar became a temporary morgue as well as the scene of a plane crash. Bodies of the dead lay on stretchers and ambulances groped through the snow and around rescue workers and vehicles, taking the dead and injured away.

The dead were twisted, broken, burned. One dead man's shirt was turned from his body. His tie was still knotted around his neck.

Freezing Rain Rips Area; Greene Mishap Kills Two

By SHANE CROSBY

Freezing rain, added to the already hazardous road conditions throughout the snow-covered Hudson Valley, resulted in numerous skidding accidents and contributed to the deaths of a mother and her 6-year-old son in a car-truck crash at 7 p. m. in Greene County.

Icy traveling on the New York State Thruway also caused many accidents including a 14-car-bus pileup near Kingston where one witness reported cars "flew everywhere" into each other and snow banks.

The snow, sleet, rain and freezing rain that swept across New York State is expected to get worse before it gets better. State Police have issued travelers warnings and say virtually all roads in the state "are in miserable condition."

Airports in the state were reported either closed or having to curtail flights throughout the morning and bus lines were said to be operating at least two hours behind schedule.

Mrs. Jean Raymond, 35, of Jewett and her son Douglas died following the collision of their car with a tractor trailer on Route 23 near East Durham. Her husband, Dale and four other children in the car were injured, none critically.

State Police at Catskill said the truck, operated by Thomas Baker of Albany, was heading east on the road when his trailer truck skidded. The trailer section became detached and continued down the road colliding with the Raymond car.

At least six persons were taken to Kingston hospitals following a chain reaction crash on the Thruway about 11 p. m. yesterday near the Kingston interchange.

A car parked on the road was hit by another car in freezing rain and snow until at least 14 cars and a bus had created a pileup that blocked the North-bound lane for two hours.

Twenty persons were in the 14 cars and an undisclosed number were in the bus. The six taken to hospitals were treated and released, according to Fattum's and Doctor's Ambulances who carried the injured.

The wet snow along the Thruway was credited as a major factor in holding the number of injuries down. An ambulance attendant said the snow banks acted as cushions.

Three persons were injured about 1 a.m. this morning near Tannersville in Greene County when two cars collided on Route 32A. Troopers at Catskill said the two cars were heading in opposite directions on the ice-covered road when both drivers applied their brakes and skidded into one another.

At least three accidents occurred in the city last night and this morning due to icy road conditions. No injuries were reported.

Area police stations reported extremely hazardous road conditions, compounded by freezing rain that came hard enough to cause windshields to freeze despite defrosters and wipers.

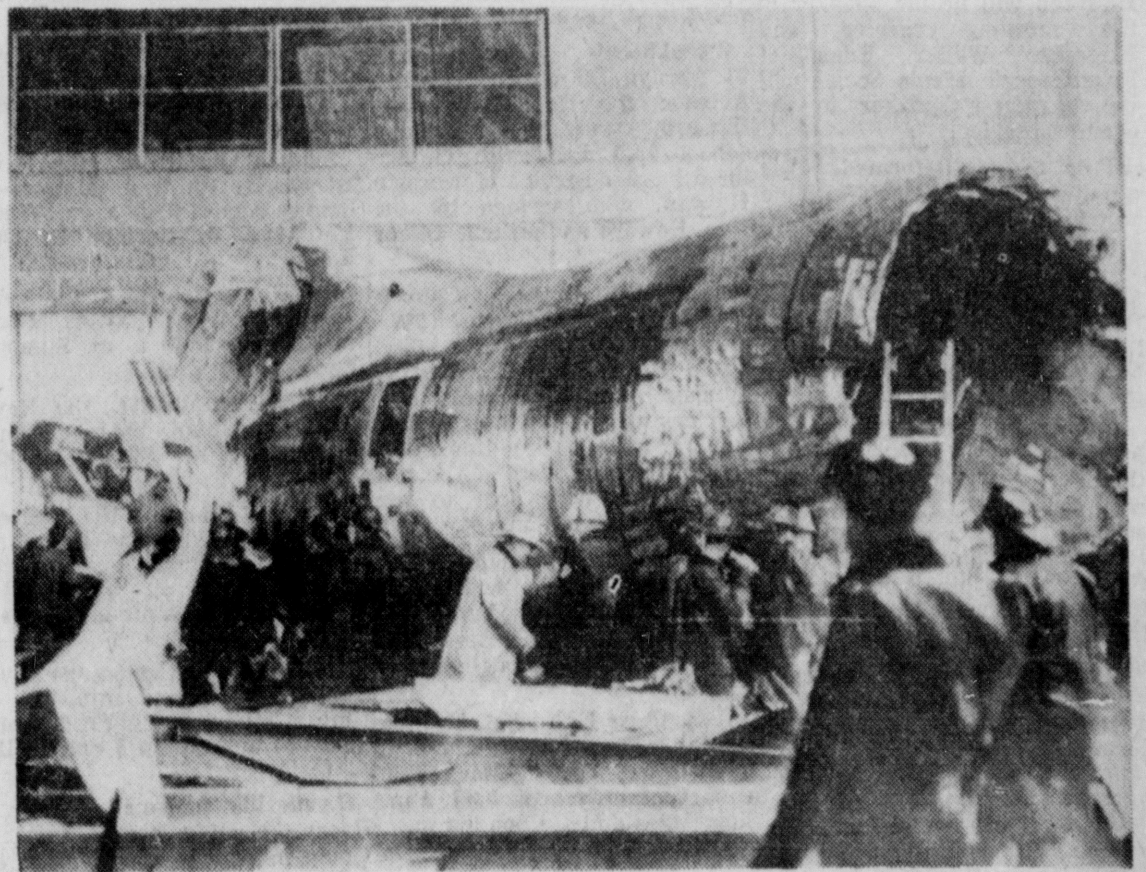

United Press International reported traveler warnings were in effect from eastern Nebraska to New England by early this morning.

The severity of road conditions caused the state of Nebraska to place its National Guard on alert and motorists throughout most of the nation were cautioned to drive with extreme care.

The weather system causing all the trouble is one of two major storms virtually covering the entire nation and providing what UPI called "the year 1968 with an unwelcome and devastating curtain call."

No 'Dilly-Dallying', U.S. to S. Vietnam

By GEORGE SIBERA

PARIS (UPI)—The United States today tried to get South Vietnam to stop what President Johnson called "dilly-dallying" in getting talks started to end the Vietnam War.

Johnson's Paris negotiators, W. Averell Harriman and Cyrus R. Vance, huddled with their Saigon counterparts in a morning session aimed at finding new agreement on breaking procedural blocks to negotiations.

The Saigon leaders, Pham Dang Lam and Nguyen Van An, restated their hard line Friday, saying they refuse to recognize the Viet Cong as a separate entity and demanding a Communist battlefield surrender.

President Johnson in Washington said to newsmen he wants "to cut out all of this dilly-dallying, talking about where you sit at the tables, who comes in first, who speaks first and all that."

His statement underscored United States would "spare no effort to achieve a break-increasing American impatience through."

at Saigon's reluctance to join expanded Vietnam War negotiations involving the Viet Cong.

The meeting with South Vietnam's negotiators came one day after Vance's arrival from a week with President Johnson discussing new strategies in breaking the procedural impasse.

In Washington, Johnson said dilly-dallying, talking about going in substantive talks after his return there (to Paris) ...

Vance told newsmen the

Fair Street Reformed To Install on Sunday

At the 11 a. m. service Sunday, the Fair Street Reformed Church will install 10 men to positions of elders and deacons on the consistory, which is the official representative board of the local church.

Elected in November at the Annual Congregational meeting and approved at a second congregational meeting held on the fourth Sunday in Advent are the following persons:

To serve as Elder for a three-year term: Floyd Ellsworth, William Lamoureux and Glenn Knapp; for a one year term, Benjamin Emerick and Thomas Salsbury who has been elected to serve as the Clerk of the Consistory. To serve as Deacon for a three-year term: Ross Johnson, John Isenberg and John More; for a two-year term, Harry Hults, and for a one-year term to serve as Treasurer of consistory, Ralph Post.

These men replace others who are now retiring to become members of the church advisory board, the Great Consistory. They are: Senior Elder Milton M. Grover, Dr. John R. Roberts, Warren A. Russell, Stanley E. Hankinson, William C. Boyle, George J. Leedecke and Chief Deacon William V. Miller. A dinner in their honor will be held in the latter part of January.

The Consistory at its last meeting elected Conrad G. Roth as Senior Elder for 1969 and Harold P. Hoffman was appointed Chief Deacon.

At the 9:30 service Sunday a reception for new members will be held.

Birth Control Protest; Keep Money from Church

DALLAS (UPI)—A biologist wants the world's largest science organization to help in a nationwide economic boycott against the Roman Catholic Church in protest of the papal ban on artificial birth control.

Dr. Jeffrey J.W. Baker, professor of biology at the University of Puerto Rico, told the 135th meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science that money withheld from the church under the boycott would be used to furnish birth control information to "countries

Memorial

In loving memory of our father, James M. Woods, who passed away two years ago today, December 28, 1966.

God took him home, it was His will.

But in our hearts, we love him still.

His memory is as dear today. As in the hour he passed away. We often sit and think of him when we are all alone.

For memory is the only friend. That grief can call its own.

Poughkeepsie Paper Ordered To Go Union

Poughkeepsie Newspapers, Inc., the publishers of the Poughkeepsie Journal has been ordered by the National Labor Relations Board to recognize Local 445, I. B. of T., Yonkers as the bargaining agent for circulation department employees and commence bargaining with Local 445, Theodore G. Daley, secretary-treasurer of Local 445 announced today.

The order was issued Dec. 24, and resulted from a trial held in Poughkeepsie in mid-September 1968 before Trial Examiner Sidney Sherman. In addition, Trial Examiner Sherman found that the company violated the labor law by threatening employees with more arduous working conditions and more inconvenient working schedules, and by promising the employees economic benefits.

Local 445, has requested the newspaper to meet with them on Jan. 20, 1969 in Poughkeepsie to begin negotiations for a collective agreement, Daley said.

Pueblo Crewmen in Debriefing; Navy Court of Inquiry Awaits

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — A high-level court of inquiry—which can recommend anything from bravery medals to courts martial—has been ordered by the Navy to study the loss of the intelligence ship Pueblo.

The court of five admirals was directed Friday by the Pacific Fleet commander, Adm. John J. Hyland, to "inquire into the circumstances relating to the seizure of the USS Pueblo and the subsequent detention of the vessel and the officers and crew."

Basic issues to be decided include whether the Pueblo's skipper, Cmdr. Lloyd M. Bucher, had the "power to resist" when his ship was taken by the North Koreans.

A spokesman said the court also will consider whether state-ments allegedly made by the crew members during their 11-month confinement constituted violations of the military Code of Conduct—although the Navy said such violations are "not a criminal offense" and cannot be prosecuted.

The court will not meet for several weeks—until intensive intelligence debriefings of the crewmen is completed. It can only make recommendations to higher officials and has no power to take punitive or disciplinary action, the Navy said.

At the same time, the Navy disclosed that the two top officers and nine other crewmen aboard the Pueblo at the time of its capture were wounded by North Korean gunfire.

One, fireman Duane D. Hodges of Creswell, Ore., was mortally wounded. The injuries of the others have healed, the Navy said. Bucher, the executive officer, Lt. Edward R. Murphy, and the eight other crew-

Moon Voyage Draws World Reaction

By United Press International

From Ethiopia to Moscow to Hong Kong the world's leaders and private citizens alike reacted today to the moon voyage of Apollo 8 with delight and praise.

Communist China's 700 million people were perhaps the only ones who didn't know. Neither Peking Radio nor the New China news agency reported the Apollo 8 space venture.

Millions of persons saw the triumphant return of the Apollo 8 space ship live on television. As pictures of the Apollo crew emerging from a helicopter onto the carrier Yorktown flashed on Moscow television screens, a commentator said, "We all wished this successful landing. We admire their courage."

Soviet President Nikolai Podgorny hailed the flight as "a new accomplishment in conquering the outer space by man."

President Charles de Gaulle sent congratulations to President Johnson from the French President's country residence.

Pope Paul VI hailed the moon flight as a "magnificent enterprise and noble achievement" which he called "an incredible and marvelous feat."

British Prime Minister Harold

Wilson told President Johnson "this voyage is an important contribution to the expansion of mankind's knowledge of the universe and because we have been able to follow it on television it has added a new dimension to our appreciation that this is indeed a one world. Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia said was "a testimony to the ingenuity and courage of the American people."

The communist Cuban radio called the flight a "transcendental cosmic event" and devoted seven minutes of its most important news program to the splashdown.

Thousands of persons cheered in many parts of the earth as they heard of the splashdown on radio and television but perhaps the noisiest reaction was in parts of Latin America.

In Managua, Nicaragua, fire engine sirens screamed, automobile horns blasted and factory whistles wailed.

In Montevideo, Uruguay, the newspaper El Dia blew its fog-horn-like whistle for several minutes.

On such Rio de Janeiro beaches as Copacabana and Ipanema, crowds of bathers applauded or cheered at the splashdown.

Apollo Wives Are Awestruck Over Venture

SEABROOK, Tex. (UPI)—The wives of the Apollo 8 crew, "awestruck" that their husbands had carried out the "tremendous vision" of a quarter-million mile voyage to the moon, today were jubilant at the safe return of their husbands from history's riskiest space venture.

The three young women had watched the television coverage Friday of the astronauts' fiery return to earth. Then, with their men safely home from work, they whispered prayers, sipped champagne in celebration and gave thanks.

"I feel very humble for the flight—and very thankful for people all over the country, even all over the world, who prayed for the success of this flight," said Valerie Anders, wife of rookie spaceman William Anders.

Susan Borman, wife of Apollo 8 commander Frank Borman said she felt "tremendous relief and elation" when the Apollo spacecraft splashed safely down into the Pacific ocean Friday morning.

She said she was "awestruck that these men (scientists and technicians) had this tremendous vision—and that they (the astronauts) were able to carry it out."

Marilyn Lovell, wife of veteran astronaut James Lovell, said her husband looked "just beautiful" when he stepped aboard the aircraft carrier USS Yorktown after splashdown.

"I know that's no way to describe a man but he looks just great," Mrs. Lovell said.

The Apollo women admitted there were a few tense moments during the six-day space odyssey.

"I was apprehensive during the lunar orbit but everything worked out marvelously," said Mrs. Lovell as she watched her husband aboard the Yorktown.

Mrs. Borman agreed that the return of Apollo 8 through the atmosphere was easier on her nerves than the lunar orbit.

Mrs. Anders also said she was most concerned for the space crew's safety during lunar orbit insertion, but said she was "not really worried because I had people around me who knew what they were talking about and reassured me."

men will receive Purple Heart medals in a ceremony next week.

The Navy also disclosed that Bucher is suffering from physical and emotional exhaustion and has been moved to a private room in a building separate from the other crew quarters at the U.S. Naval Hospital.

In explaining the court of inquiry, Capt. Gale E. Krouse, Pacific Fleet senior judge advocate, told a news conference there "will be no speculation on what could or would" be done to members of the crew or the loss of the ship and for any actions while they were prisoners of North Korea.

"We cannot answer inquiries on any alleged crimes . . . or on the conduct of the crew . . . until the court of inquiry has completed its work," Krouse said.

Krouse said individual circumstances would decide if any of the crewmen violated the military's Code of Conduct, a 1955 executive order signed by President Dwight D. Eisenhower after a study of American prisoners in the Korean War.

The code, a guideline to U.S. servicemen who become prisoners of war, pledges them to "make no oral or written statements disloyal to my country . . . or harmful to its cause."

An official Navy statement Friday said "failure to observe the guidelines is not a criminal offense."

The court will have subpoena powers to order persons to appear at its sessions, he said. All sessions, except those bearing on national security, will be public. But live television coverage will not be allowed, said Krouse. The court sessions will be held at the Naval Amphibious Base in nearby Coronado.

AFTER THE MISSION—Astronauts (L-R) Frank Borman, James Lovell and William Anders wave to cameramen aboard the Yorktown after the carrier-based rescue team plucked them out of the Pacific Friday following completion of their 500,000-mile moon trip. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

Use Good Sense With Strangers

By DAVID NYDICK
UPI Education Specialist

Steps must be taken to protect children from individuals who might commit sexual or other crimes against them. Parents needn't become panicky nor should they frighten their children. They should take normal precautions and instruct the children accordingly.

The young child tends to be friendly with everyone he meets. The criminal and deranged person takes advantage of this situation. This shouldn't discourage friendliness, but should lead the child to observe several rules for his protection. The best protection is actually prevention. Once an incident has occurred the physical or psychological harm has been done.

Teenagers Too

An older child faces similar problems. Teenagers are more capable of protecting themselves and preventing incidents. On the other hand they are also more open to criminal attack since they are not as closely supervised. They are also outside at later hours and in more dangerous places.

What advice should be given to children? It is important that they understand the dangers, but should not become constantly tense and frightened. With this in mind, you should consider making the following recommendations to your child with the appropriate adjustments depending upon his age.

Never hitch hike or accept a ride from a person you do not know. Politely express thanks, but refuse the ride. If possible obtain the license number and a description of the car and person. The offer of a ride should be reported to parents, police or teachers.

Don't take money, candy, or gifts of any kind from a stranger. The promise of some exciting gift is often used to tempt someone into an improper or dangerous act.

Avoid going with a stranger who asks for directions to some place. It is even advisable to avoid getting into a conversation with a stranger. This would eliminate any problems.

Parents should always be informed of visits to another person's home. In addition parents should check carefully before you do any kind of work for a stranger.

Buddy System

It is dangerous to play alone in alleys, in woods, on the beach or in other deserted areas. Try to be with one or more friends when going to playgrounds, to movies, on hikes, etc. There is usually greater safety in numbers.

Don't stay around public toilets, schools, theaters, or other public buildings. Always leave immediately.

Individuals who wish to do harm of any kind will often wait around public places looking for strangers. If you remain in school past the normal hours arrange for your parents to pick you up. In other situations, always call ahead when detained for any reason.

Never allow a stranger to touch you. Parents should be told immediately of any such attempt.

It is also a good idea to report the presence of any strangers who might be loitering in a neighborhood with no apparent purpose.

The Resolution Revolution

By LEI

New Year's Eve is almost here again. For most of us, it will be a festive time, whether we see the New Year in by sitting in front of the telly with a bowl of popcorn, or by dancing ourselves loose to the loudest band around.

New Year's Eve is the time, when we review the past year. We remember the good times, we remember our achievements with pride. And then... perhaps other things come to mind, things we'd rather not remember. We all make mistakes—and perhaps the worst part of having made them is how they come dancing back into our minds like nasty little sprites on the occasion when we'd like most to forget that they ever happened.

All-too-many New Year's resolutions come out of this attitude of remorse. We promise ourselves that NEXT New Year's Eve we won't have to regret THAT mistake again. Some souls with will powers of carbon-forged steel make it (and never stop boasting about it.) The rest of us, next New Year's Eve, will add our willpower made of warm jello to the other things that we have to regret. (That is, assuming we can even recall what we resolved.)

Most of us are fond of our bad habits. If we weren't, we wouldn't have them. Of course, if you've a vice you can't abide, you won't find it hard to kick it at all. However, for the usual run of personality flaws, bad habits, and outright vices, it seems all-too-true that resolutions were made to be broken. (As your friends will gleefully remind you.)

Since your vices, like your sweetheart, make you miserable once in awhile but are nice to have around, try a new approach. Don't resolve to cure your bad habits this New Year's Eve. Leave them alone, and promise yourself you'll develop one good habit this year. Resolve to take up some volunteer work. To find time to read those books you haven't gotten around to. To hang your threads when you take them off. To put bread out in the bird feeder all winter. Or to bring a little light into an unhappy life, somewhere.

Or just promise yourself that once a day, you'll stop and find something beautiful in the world to look at for minutes.

Next year you may still have all your bad habits—but you'll be a better person, anyway.

Trip for Bailey School

Students from J. Watson Bailey School, recently visited two restored historic sites in Westchester County.

The school's eighth grade students were accompanied by their teachers, and with the trip under the direction of Mrs. Elaine Flannagan, as they toured Sunnyside, author Washington Irving's home in Tarrytown, and the 18th century Dutch-English Van Cortlandt Manor in Croton-on-Hudson.

At Sunnyside the students saw Irving's house as it was when he lived there. Customed hostesses talked about the home's furnishings and Irving's personal effects which reflect the tastes and interests of his time, the mid-19th century. They also reviewed his literary life as the first internationally recognized

American author who wrote "The Legend of Sleepy Hollow" and "Rip Van Winkle."

The students found a different world at Van Cortlandt Manor now restored to its era of greatest influence. That was when Pierre Van Cortlandt, New York's first lieutenant governor, lived there. During the tour the spinning, weaving, candle-dipping and open-hearth cooking once carried on at the Manor. Students also toured the Manor's Ferry House Kitchen and Ferry House, which served as an inn for travelers on the old Albany Post Road. Sunnyside and Cortlandt Manor are Sleepy Hollow Restoration properties located just off U. S. Route 9, not far from the New York-State Thruway.

The Country Wife

As I think I have mentioned cracks between the boards, and before, we have been having we are in process of putting trouble with woodpeckers eating up aluminium paper and new holes in the shingles of a small shingles, a costly operation and house. Now we have taken the I'd like to know which wood shingles off, an exterminator pecker to send the bill to. While came and squirted poison in the the exterminator was spraying.

some 100,000 flies boiled out and dropped dead on the ground. I was glad. When a chipmunk or even a mouse falls prey to the cat, I think sadly of the mate at home or worse still of the possible little ones left without a mother. But I cannot get interested in the family life of the fly; in which I show how inferior I am to the great Henri Fabre, to whom every wasp in his garden was a personal friend. Flies, Japanese beetles, mosquitoes, and so on are just bugs to me. Away with them.

McMichael-Nicholls Betrothal Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Roy D. McMichael, 2100 South Fourteenth Street, LaCrosse, Wisc., announced the engagement of their daughter, Patricia, to Brian Anthony Nicholls, 130 Lucas Avenue, Kingston, son of Mr. and Mrs. David J. Nicholls, 173 Washington Street, Keene, N.H.

A February 1, 1969 wedding is planned in LaCrosse, Wisc.

Nonshrink Wool

The International Wool Secretariat recently conducted a swim to prove the effectiveness of the new shrink-resistant standards on Woolmark knitwear throughout the world. Six students swam 25 miles off the coast of Belgium in lightweight virgin wool sweaters. This is welcome news for wool lovers who can't seem to wash their wools without shrinkage.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, DECEMBER 28, 1968

War on Crime

Because he made law and order a prime issue of his campaign, President-elect Nixon is expected to move quickly in a war on crime soon after he takes office January 20. The question is, what crime will be his prime objective?

The House Republican Task Force on Crime urged Nixon to make organized crime his first objective. In a 9,000-word report, it finds that "strike forces" initiated by Attorney General Ramsey Clark have been very effective and should be doubled for even greater results. These are units of Federal anticrime operatives who move into cities that have unusual organized crime problems, in a concerted effort to convict racketeers. The 60 lawyers in this section should be doubled, the task force recommends.

That is well and good. We hope not only that Nixon will follow this recommendation, but will also upgrade the strike force into a new division in the Department of Justice, under an Assistant Attorney General. That would warn racketeers that they will be rooted out and prosecuted. The strike forces now are operating, or will be before inauguration, in Buffalo, Brooklyn, Detroit, Miami, Newark and Philadelphia. As many or more cities have similar problems.

Important as is the suppression of organized crime, it is not what we understood by Nixon's attack on crime in the street and his promise to bring about law and order. Crime in the street is the mugging and robbery and thieving that has brought fear and terror to ordinary citizens who dare not step outside their doors at night, less they be assaulted and subjected to hoodlumism and worse.

Crime in the street is the result of a deterioration in morals and personal responsibility. It cannot be controlled by crime busters, whether they be feds or local police. National leadership, education, jobs and opportunities are needed here. We expect recommendations from the new Council on Urban Affairs to help solve this frightening crime in the streets. That is what people wanted when they voted for law and order.

The Cost of Killing

Concerned as we are about the cost of living, it may be instructive to look also at the cost of killing. Defense Secretary Clark M. Clifford spells it out. For the cost of one complex intelligence gathering plane, the $24.6 million RS-71, the Air Force could have purchased more than 100 B-17 Flying Fortresses in World War II. That is an example of the unbelievable increase in the cost of the highly sophisticated weaponry of modern warfare.

Furthermore, said Clifford, any idea that the end of the war in Vietnam would reduce the defense budget by $15 billion to $20 billion and release this amount for social programs is wishful thinking. The defense expenditures will remain high because much of the weaponry of the Vietnam war will have to be replaced by more effective firepower to keep up with enemy capabilities.

There is another element usually forgotten. The defense industry employs 1.6 million workers and supports their families. Together, they could muster five million votes, not a small group to antagonize.

However, they should direct their considerable managerial, engineering and creative skills to the solution of the nation's social ills. That not only could make up to them for the dollars they would lose in defense contracts, but it would be work that should pyramid indefinitely.

1200 Slum Areas

When we speak of slums, the ordinary person thinks of the congested areas of the big cities, and especially the ghettos into which blacks have crowded in recent years. The fact is, that there are nearly 1200 "slums" in the United States by definition of the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

These are communities of all sizes in the nation that have filed official plans of action to cope with problems of slums and blight. They are called Workable Plans for Community Improvement. They are required before a community can receive Federal aid for urban renewal, low-rent public housing and FHA mortgage insurance to assist with urban renewal projects and relocating displaced families.

In the fiscal year ending June 30 last, there were 1129 workable programs before HUD for action. The cities involved now are concerned about their chances of getting these plans in action under the new Nixon Administration.

Both Gov. George Romney, who will head HUD, and Daniel P. Moynihan, who will head the Council on Urban Affairs, view the crisis in the cities as the nation's greatest challenge. But how they plan to meet this challenge will determine the action they will take in eliminating the slums throughout the country.

Now It Can Be Told

Henry J. Taylor Says

LBJ Shouldn't Meet With Reds

President Johnson's very human determination to have one last talk with the Kremlin leaders before he leaves office is one thing. The wisdom of it—and the limitations it could clamp on President-elect Nixon—is quite another.

The problem of peace in our pressure-cooker world is not the making of more agreements with the Soviet leaders. It is the get them to live up to the agreements they have already made.

Apologists for Communist imperialism, persistently brainwashing us, have distracted us from recognizing this as the true problem. And, with the advent of the Nixon Administration, the Kremlin leaders are pumping out enough hot air to float the Navy blimp corps. But the problem, nevertheless, is the guts of our difficulty with the Red bloc. It began instantly at the end of World War II and has continued through five American Presidents to this very day.

Stalin asked President Roosevelt at Yalta how long he expected to keep our troops in Europe. The President answered not more than two years. But 23 years have passed and Soviet aggressions, most lately in the brutal 1968 reconquest of Czechoslovakia, have forced us to keep our forces in Europe.

On October 2, 1945, at Berlin the Kremlin pledged to President Truman "uniformity of the German population throughout Germany." By June 24, 1948, the Soviet had blockaded Berlin and we had to operate the Berlin airlift to keep the free area of Berlin from starving.

Yet preposterously, Premier Alexei Kosygin had no hesitancy in bringing up the German question within the provisions of the Potsdam Agreement in President Johnson's last meeting with him at Glassboro on June 25, 1967.

It is the same on the other side of the world. The Soviet waited until we defeated Japan before conveniently entering the war. The Reds' painless extraction of $1 billion in industrial equipment from Manchuria promptly followed. Then Soviet stooge Mao Tse-tung "negotiated" at a summit meeting with China President Chiang Kai-shek, whom he had not seen for 20 years, until during the course of the meeting his Reds took over strategic control of China.

The Chinese Communists have never laid down their arms since the 1930s and the attacks from Java to Saigon are all a part of the same sweeping aggression. Who was it that split Korea, overran Tibet and despoiled Laos and Cambodia? Who threatens Thailand and Singapore? Who invaded India? And, admittedly, did not the Communist coup in Indonesia fail only because of the free world resistance in Vietnam?

After breaking every agreement he had made with President Eisenhower at Camp David, Premier Nikita Khrushchev bullied President Eisenhower at Paris and then bullied President Kennedy at Vienna.

Well established in Cuba, the Soviet shifted its aggressions from Cuba to Vietnam. Now the Kremlin is telling President Johnson that we must accept defeat in Vietnam and trade our NATO alliance for a nuclear non-proliferation treaty. Yet what is the Soviet itself doing in Vietnam?

The U.S.S.R. is supplying all—the petroleum, gasoline, grease and aviation fuel for the North Vietnamese. It is providing all the sophisticated weapons and weapons systems. The Kremlin is supplying all the MIG planes. Russia not only installed the entire vast North Vietnamese anti-aircraft defense network, but maintains and supports much of it with Soviet "technicians."

More than 5,000 Soviet ground-to-air missiles (SAMs) have been fired at our planes by this Soviet personnel, according to House Armed Services Committee members who returned recently from Vietnam.

The Soviet supplies four-fifths of all the explosives and munitions used against us; 80 per cent of all the bullets, mines, bombs and shells of all kinds.

This is no time for President Johnson to meet with Kremlin leaders. That time can come only if the new Nixon Administration can talk from a strong position after putting our American diplomatic, military and economic house in order.

President Johnson should know by now—assuredly Mr. Nixon knows—that the Soviet is not a leopard with a spot-remover.

Drew Pearson Says

Near East Crisis Is So Bad It Can Explode Into War

WASHINGTON—It's ironic that the most dangerous spot in the world during this Christmas season is the barren windswept town of Bethlehem where Christ was born, and the area around it. Yet in that very danger may come possible fulfillment of the goal of peace. For the Near East can go only in two ways: Into another war, which almost certainly would mean World War III; or toward a permanent peace.

The factors making for war are many. They include: 1—The Arab population's demand for revenge. There was a time in 1964 when visiting in Cairo, I was convinced the Egyptian population generally wanted peace. While they did not love Israel, they figured Israel was there to stay, and they might as well coexist.

But the sting of the June 1967 six-day war changed that. Now there is a demand for revenge.

This demand has made peace moves difficult for Arab leaders. To run counter to public opinion means the risk of an assassination. The assassination of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy by a Jordanian revanchist, the plot against Richard Nixon's life by other Jordanians, is an indication of the risk in store for an Arab leader who wants peace. Assassination had become a way of life in the Near East long before the Kennedy assassination in Los Angeles. It has been intensified since.

2—Sentiment has hardened in Israel. Upcoming elections have divided the country into two camps: The militants, who are hardliners who don't worry about another war; and the moderates who believe Israel cannot exist without cooperation with the Arabs.

On the other hand, there are three powerful factors in the Holy Land favorable to peace.

A—Most important is the determination by both the United States and the Soviet Union to prevent another Arab-Israeli confrontation. They know that if another war should erupt, Russian "advisers" in Egypt would certainly be killed, there would be demands for Russian intervention, then American intervention.

To prevent another showdown, the Soviet Union has sent a tough warning to the Egyptians to curtail border raids. Foreign Minister Gromyko has been in Cairo on secret conferences.

The Russian navy has also withdrawn about 20 units from the Mediterranean. This may have resulted from the electronic espionage of the American navy, which was learning the secrets of modern Soviet vessels; or it may have resulted from worry over a Naval showdown. The end result, however is good.

When I asked former Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion two years ago when there would be peace between Israel and the Arab states, he replied "When the United States and Russia decide there will be peace." It now looks as if the United States and Russia have made this decision.

B—There are important Moslem moderates who want peace. King Hussein of Jordan is one; but he cannot operate alone. If support can be given him from such moderates as King Hassan of Morocco, President Bourguiba of Tunisia, the President of Lebanon, the Shah of Iran, and the President of Turkey, Hussein could proceed with plans for a separate refugee country "Palestina" on the west bank of the Jordan, serving as a haven for Palestinian refugees.

C—There is important sentiment inside Israel for peace and coexistence. The great majority of Israeli leaders know that Israel cannot remain armed to the teeth forever; it must have coexistence, eventually cooperation with its Arab neighbors.

Secret Intelligence U.S. Intelligence has picked up these developing clues that time is ripening for USA-USSR cooperation.

Nasser and Red Chinese—The Red Chinese embassy in Cairo has become the center of Chinese espionage and infiltration in Africa in competition with the Soviet Union. Huang Hua, the Chinese ambassador to Egypt, was the only envoy not ordered back to Peking during China's cultural revolution. He has been devoting his energies more to undermining Russia in Africa than undermining the USA. His activities have so irritated the Russians that they've threatened to drop their support of Nasser if Nasser continues to permit the Chinese to use Cairo as an anti-Soviet base.

Chinese bases in Albania—Chinese technicians are renovating three old Soviet missile and submarine bases in Albania to be used for Chinese missiles. The bases are at Durazzo, Saseno Island and Valona. China and Albania have signed a secret military pact granting the Chinese these bases on the Adriatic coast, just opposite Italy. They are also not far from Soviet military weapons in Egypt and can reach any part of the Mediterranean.

Soviet missiles on Chinese border—U.S. space cameras have taken pictures of Soviet missile sites right alongside the Chinese border. The missiles are medium-range and able to hit targets anywhere from 750 to 1,500 miles inside Red China. They could reach the Chinese nuclear works in Sinkiang Province, could also reach Inner Mongolia.

These are factors, despite ideological differences, which are pulling the United States and Soviet Russia together.

Campus Radicals—Froth But Very Little Substance

By BRUCE BLOSSAT

(NEA Washington Correspondent)

America's white, young, radical left lives by the illusion that it is thoughtful, activist and revolutionary. The truth is it is not any of these things.

These self-styled firebrands are, in fact, largely playactors filling up their otherwise empty lives with a game they think they invented. Recently Mark Rudd, ex-Columbia University student, begged for a draft deferment on the ground he is a "revolutionist" and is needed in the "movement." The only movement he has earned his way into the actors' union.

The word from a good many college campuses around the country—not including those where strictly racial issues are at stake—is that the influence of the white radicals, almost always overstated and overestimated "anyway—is fading badly."

The militants of the Students for a Democratic Society and similar organizations have surely managed to annoy a lot of people. When their shouting and posturing stops for awhile, however, it can quickly be seen they have not accomplished anything of consequence.

The defense work done by universities and colleges, a new report shows, is running at just about the same levels as in earlier years, notwithstanding endless demonstrations, sit-ins and confrontations by the radicals in schools from coast to coast.

The "revolutionists" have not stopped the drafting of young men for the armed services and have not made nearly so well-reasoned and argument for revision of selective service laws as have calm-voiced, hard-working members of the "establishment" like Sen. Edward M. (Ted) Kennedy of Massachusetts.

The wild ones have not halted the war in Vietnam, and while it may be argued that the stir they created helped to move the American government more determinedly toward a quest for negotiations, the simple truth is that no one really knows why Hanoi agreed to talk while only a limited U.S. bombing halt was in effect. The Reds more than once before had declined to talk when a fuller halt was in progress.

It is quite true that a heavy majority of Americans today want the war ended, but public opinion polls made it plain that few relatively, favor the withdrawal long advocated by the radicals.

When the young militants returned from the Chicago convention scene in late August, they were overjoyed. Though the most aggressive never got the chance they sought to disrupt the convention itself, they were sure that the televised excesses of the Chicago police had done their work for them and that they would thereafter find it easier to "radicalize" not only more American youth but many white adult liberals.

As indicated, reports from campuses show this has not happened. Nor have the more mature liberals turned to any significant numbers. The Chicago affair certainly had serious damaging effect on Vice President Humphrey's election prospects, but to the extent that aided in the election of the more conservative Richard Nixon, it hardly seems like a great radical breakthrough.

Comment from students in some schools indicates that spending as if it were really the comic-opera aspect of their activities.

The "revolutionists" picked the softest, easiest marks in the land when they chose to disrupt and vandalize some of the nation's colleges. There could be no easier targets than these normally quiet backwaters (places intended for study and reflection), administered so often by mild-mannered, even meek men totally unequipped to deal with violence and destruction.

In their confused joy over the events in Chicago, the radicals failed to grasp a hard lesson taught there. For a brief time when blood was spilling in Grant Park and on Michigan Avenue, the smell of real revolution was in the air. The police reaction has been judged excessive, but it was the first place where the "establishment" was responding as if it were really threatened seriously. There was no comedy in Chicago. Real revolution is blood in the streets, and the self-deluding "revolutionists" have yet to show much last for that.

Editor, The Freeman:

The new year is rapidly approaching. This is the time of year that many resolutions are being made for the coming new year. While we are making these new resolutions, let us include the resolution, that each and everyone of us will put more effort and emphasis into being more Americanism minded. We have a great country. Let us keep it that way.

AMERICANISM can be defined in many ways. Here are just a few, as reminders for the coming year.

AMERICANISM is: Love of America.

AMERICANISM is: A vital, active, living force.

AMERICANISM is: A way of life, the best way of life ever known.

UCCC Rips Essex 113-89; Aggies Triumph

By CHARLES J. TIANO
Sports Editor

Two explosive offenses will collide in what should be a cataclysmic climax to the second annual Ulster County Community College Holiday Basketball Festival tonight at the municipal auditorium.

Long Island Aggies of Farmingdale, 109-102 winners over Cobleskill Tech last night, meet host UCCC which demolished Essex Community College of New York, 113-89, in the championship feature at 8:30 p.m.

Last night's losers play in the consolation game at 7 p.m.

Rated off the opening performances, the titular contest is strictly a tossup. It should be an offensive battle the likes of which hasn't been seen at the hallowed Broadway arena in many years.

UCCC took apart a tough 7-1 Essex quintet with two power bursts in the first 15 minutes of the game, while the Aggies ran away from Cobleskill when the chips were down, making the final count of 109-102 the most deceptive basketball tally of the season.

The Aggies, 5-2 going into the game, unveiled a talented trio in Tim Quinn, Ed McGinley and Ron Baxter, who among them accounted for 87 points, dominated the boards and keyed Long Island's collapsing zone defense.

McGinley poured 31 points through the hoop, 21 in the first half, and Quinn, an aggressive 5-10, 175-pounder, netted 30, of which 20 came in the first half when the Aggies bolted to a 20-10 Marshall O'Neil, the back-

Ron Baxter, the sensational freshman hailed as potentially the finest player in Aggie history picked up 26 points, 13 in each half.

The game was never closer than 22-18 when the Aggies reeled off 12 straight points to zoom ahead 38-22 and kept pouring it on for a 65-45 halftime margin. The action got sloppy in the second half but the Long Island victory was never in doubt.

Kim Bellis, a reserve, came off the bench to lead the upstarters with 21 points.

UCCC came up with a hatful of heroes against the aggressive but outclassed Essex squad.

teamed with Pough for a mas-

The tide of the game changed abruptly with 12:15 left in the first half. Larrier's twisting lay-up put UCCC ahead 21-13. Coach Mike Perry's boys then reeled off 13 straight points before Morris Griffin checked the rush with a deuce. But Ulster bounced back with another surge that widened its lead to 47-19 enroute to a 65-38 margin at the half.

O'Neill drilled five deuces in that surge, with Moss, Lindhorst and Larrier picking up the other points. Moss tailed off to 14 points, his lowest harvest of the season but with Larrier, Lindhorst, O'Neil and Pough functioning like they did last night, it was not disastrous.

Ulster, rolling to its eighth victory in nine games, displayed better balance against Essex than it has all season. Even with their star rebounder Gary Kirkwood missing from the lineup because of an injury, the Senators combined a rugged zone press with brilliant shooting for a notable victory. They showed such vast superiority over the Garden

Staters they could afford the luxury of losing three of the five starters—Lindhorst, Pough and O'Neil—on fouls in the last two minutes of play. Coach Perry used his bench freely in both halves without any appreciable diminution of scoring power.

Essex's standout player was Morris Griffin, who potted 18 points and was outstanding under the boards. Jimmy Smith led with 19 points, hitting 13 in the heavy going of the second half.

The championship battle tonight is between Long Island's Big Three of McGinley, Quinn and Baxter against the combined finesse of the UCCC squad. It should be quite a contest and worthy of a larger turnout than greeted last night's opening action. But then, of course, it was hardly a night for folks to venture out into the cold.

Marlboro, Red Hook Score in Tourney

By DENNIS R. CARO
(Freeman Sports Staff)

MARLBORO — "Defense," said Chester High School basketball coach Verdelle Payne, "Rebounds," commented Cornwall mentor Glen McGinnis.

"They play better defense when they're sleeping," Payne moaned. "The only strong point we have is our height and they're controlling the boards," groaned McGinnis.

The two coaches had one thing in common here Friday night, they both came out on the losing end of a wild and woolly ballgame in the opening round of the Marlboro Christmas tournament. They took different routes, but they got there just the same.

Looked Close

When the Hambletonians took the court against Pete Lawson's well drilled Red Hook quintet, it looked like a one or a two point ballgame. The contest was tied 16 times through the first three periods and the lead changed hands on eleven occasions.

But the Raiders came up with ten straight points in the closing minutes of the third frame and the opening minutes of the fourth to move from a 40-39 deficit to a 49-40 lead and were never headed, although Chester did come up with five points in the last 23 seconds to make the 57-54 final score relatively close.

For the Green Dragons, it was the other way around. Ed Sagarese's host squad ripped out to a 10-2 lead midway through the first quarter and ended that initial frame up 14-6.

Cornwall began to move. At the end of the second quarter the score was 32-26, and when Tom Fanning hit a jumper two minutes and ten seconds into the third period to cap an eight-point surge, the game was knotted at 34.

It Was Close

From then on it was nip and tuck, with Cornwall leading briefly at 38-36 and 58-57 with a little less than four minutes left in the game. A bucket by Dan Marsh gave the Dukes the lead and a counter by Jeff Bouton at the three minute mark brought the score to 60-59.

Then a nifty lay up by Jeff Greiner gave the Dukes the lead for keeps, and a foul shot by Dan Kurtz and a Dan Pasante jumper put the icing on the cake. Fanning hit the last basket of the game for the final 64-62 score.

Chester versus Red Hook was a picture book contest in the classic sense of the word — the Hambletonians' big man, six foot-seven inch Everett VanDerHeide, against the Riders' solid six foot-one inch forecourt of Bill Barringer, Ralph Cort and Bill Englert.

But it was no contest. Cort consistently outjumped VanDerHeide on the matchups and one of the three usually boxed him out under the boards. Actually, it was the littlest guy on the court that kept the game close, five foot-six inch Dave Price hitting five jumpers from 15-20 feet out in the first quarter.

At that point, the Raiders apparently realized he was there and shut him off, but the speedy guard's fine ballhandling continued to help the Hambletonians work against the Red Hook zone.

The big disappointment for Chester, however, was the failure of Payne's 3-2 trap zone, in which three defenders shift to the side the ball is on. "They just weren't moving," Payne said as the Raiders found the holes for easy baskets. "It usually works well."

Suspension

With his leading scorer, Tom Johnson, still sitting out a 48 hour suspension, McGinnis characterized his team as "tall, but inexperienced. We do well under the boards, but we don't have a shooter to our name."

Which wasn't quite the way it all worked out. It was Marlboro's gymnasium, and Marsh, Greiner and Dan Martuscello combined to show McGinnis that the Dukes owned the backboards as well, pulling down 43 offensive rebounds to only 14 for the Green Dragons.

And it was the hot hands of Bouton and Fanning that brought Cornwall back from its eight point deficit.

Sagarese had wanted Chester in the final round, because the Hambletonians had handed his club its initial defeat on the opening night of the season, but Red Hook is just as important. "Everybody keeps telling me they're only 1-2 (2-2 now)," he said, "but look who they lost to." (Oneonta and Rondout)

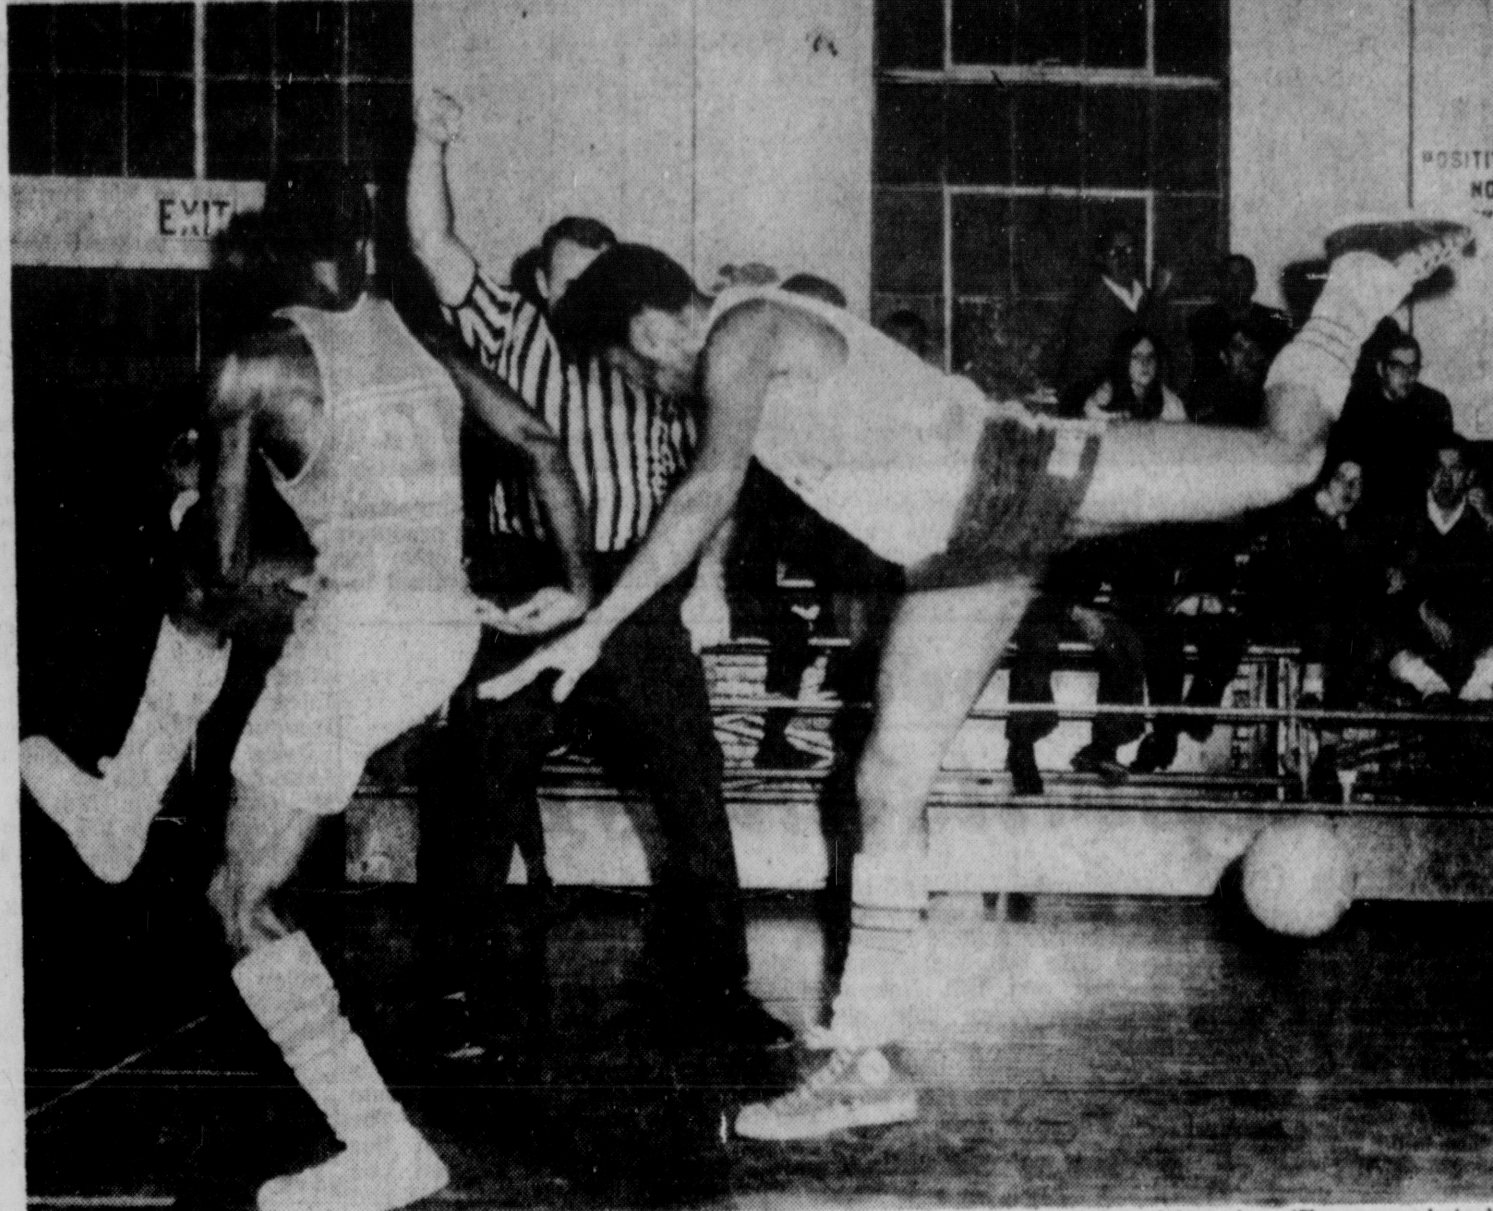

Marlboro didn't do much better against the undefeated Indians, Sagarese said, "and don't forget Red Hook played them in their first game of the season."

Cornwall meets Chester in the consolation game, slated to start at 7 tonight, and the final is scheduled for 8:30.

Unbeaten Illinois made it eight in a row by erasing a 13-point deficit to down Creighton 90-77 in the Hurricane Classic at Miami Beach. The Illini meet Miami of Florida in the final tonight. Miami edged Pitt 72-70.

Pete Maravich of Louisiana State and Calvin Murphy of Niagara, the nation's two leading scorers, had "on" nights.

Maravich tossed in 45 points as LSU came from behind to knock Wyoming out of the first round of the All-College Tourney at Oklahoma City. Murphy got 47 in a losing cause as the Purple Eagles fell before Indiana 86-83 in the Quaker City Classic at Philadelphia.

New Hartford Downs KHS 68-59

ONEONTA—Basketball coaches and newsmen alike left the gymnasium at the Oneonta Christmas Basketball Tournament here last night with the opinion that the Kingston High School quintet was the best of the four squads entered. All of which probably didn't make the Maroon coach Jack Gilligan feel any better.

"The cold hand," a dreaded hoop disease that strikes without warning, hit Kingston in the opening quarter against New Hartford of Utica, and, although the Maroons fought back from the 15-6 deficit in that initial frame, it all caught up with them in the end.

Mediocre shooting over the final quarter and a half, while the Spartans were hitting a hot streak, resulted in Kingston being outscored, 39-24, to wipe out a 35-29 Maroon lead midway through the third quarter and produce the 68-59 final score.

New Hartford, led by 6-foot-9-inch center Eric Steppenbach and 6-foot-5-inch forward Jim Rumsey, was deadly off its own backboard, producing the fast break with full court passes to guard Walt Hameline to smash the Kingston press.

Forcing their shots in the opening period as they tried to break the cold spell, and getting into foul trouble as they strove to stop the fast break, the Maroons settled down through the middle quarters.

Kingston began to get more than its share of the rebounds as Gene Bruno, Werner Kolin and Ted Wood went to work on Steppenbach and Rumsey, the Maroons also began to work the ball in against the Spartan zone, solving at least temporarily the problem of Steppenbach clogging the middle.

The big center refused to be drawn out, however, and when Kingston's outside shot failed again down the stretch that proved the difference. Kingston got deeper into foul trouble, and with the Maroons unable to take chances the game slowly became a race to the end.

Kingston committed 23 fouls to New Hartford's 10, and the Maroons were able to convert only 3 of 11 from the charity stripe to 16 of 29 for the Spartans. The Maroons, shooting only 35 per cent from the floor, held their own in the rebounding department, trailing the Spartans 37-36.

In the tourney's opening contest, Mohonson High School of Schenectady, held to only 16 points in the first half by a tough Oneonta zone, broke the game open with 39 points in the second half on the way to a 55-44 decision.

The undefeated Mighty Warriors will face New Hartford in the finals tonight while Gilligan takes his turn at solving the Oneonta defense.

Coach Nick Lambrose has had problems with his offense all year, and the host club, which plays extremely poorly against a press, is not rated a good bet. The Spartans are the odds-on choice in the title contest. (To quote the Schenectady Gazette, "If Mohonson wins they should send the ball to Lourdes.")

UCLA Whips Providence

By TED MEIER

Associated Press Sports Writer

It was a disappointing homecoming for Lew Alcindor, the million-dollar giant of college basketball. He thought so anyway.

"I thought I could have played much better," said the agile 7-foot-1½ All-American for UCLA's national champions after they had whipped Providence the ECAC Holiday Festival at Madison Square Garden.

Why? Lynn Shackelford, his teammate, answered for the former New York City schoolboy star, who reportedly will be offered a $1 million bonus to sign with an American Basketball Association club after this season.

"Because I got eight rebounds and he got eight rebounds," Shackelford said. "Anytime that happens, Lew figures he's had a bad game."

In any event, Mr. A. as he is sometimes called, triggered a second-half spurt that gave the No. 1 Uclans their 22nd straight and a fantastic 69th victory in their last 70 games. Lew finished with 26 points.

"There's no human being in the world who can stop him," said Princeton Coach Pete Carril. Princeton, which beat Holy Cross 67-55, is paired against UCLA in tonight's semifinals.

Chris Thomforde, Princeton's 6-9 center, will attempt to stop Alcindor. "He's human like anyone else," Thomforde said, "but I've got to respect him."

North Carolina's Tar Heels, second-ranked nationally in The Associated Press poll, kept pace with UCLA by defeating fifth-ranked Villanova 69-61 in a bruising game. The Tar Heels are paired against St. John's of New York in the other semi-tonight. St. John's advanced by downing Michigan State 61-51.

The festival highlighted a deluge of holiday tournaments in every section of the country. There was one final, Northwestern won the Gator Bowl tourney at Jacksonville, Fla., by whipping Boston College 77-68.

Third-ranked Davidson, paced by Mike Maloy's 26 points and 15 rebounds, trimmed Maryland 83-69 in the Charlotte Invitational and plays Texas in the final tonight. Texas advanced by downing Wichita State 84-81.

Unbeaten Illinois made it eight in a row by erasing a 13-point deficit to down Creighton 90-77 in the Hurricane Classic at Miami Beach. The Illini meet Miami of Florida in the final tonight. Miami edged Pitt 72-70.

Bullets Win 28th; Barry Sparks Oaks

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Baltimore Bullets came to a virtual standstill in the second half—hitting only 50 points—but their first-half explosion was more than enough to carry them to yet another victory.

The Bullets, who won only 20 games last year while losing 62, raced to their 28th triumph—against only eight losses—and a three-game bulge at the top of the Eastern Division of the National Basketball Association with a 136-122 drubbing of the hapless Milwaukee Bucks Friday night.

In the only other game the New York Knicks held off San Diego for a 111-109 victory. Oakland beat New York 131-116, New Orleans stopped Dallas 125-106 and Minnesota whipped Kentucky 110-106 in American Basketball Association games.

The Bullets, who had a nine-game winning streak snapped recently, moved to their second straight win and 15th in 17 games as Earl Monroe led them to a record shattering first-half scoring mark with 86 points at Civic Center in Baltimore.

Monroe hit 10 of 11 first-half baskets as the Bullets broke the scoring mark with a 47-point second quarter. Helping him were Jack Marin with 28 points and Kevin Loughery with 20. Flynn Robinson and Fred Hetzel topped the Bucks with 25 points.

Dick Barnett's 15-foot jump shot with 1:12 left to play gave the Knicks their victory despite 40 points by San Diego's Elvin Hayes.

The Rockets had trailed by 21 points in the opening period but came back to tie it on Don Kojis' layup with 1:28 remaining in the game.

After Barnett's basket, the Rockets had three more attempts but couldn't hit. The final shot by Hayes rolled off the rim at the buzzer.

Rick Barry, the Oakland Oaks' superstar, made his American Basketball Association debut in New York with a splash, a smash and finally a crash.

Barry, the league's top scorer, had a special news conference Thursday in a downtown New York City hotel, when he arrived.

Then the 6-foot-7 Barry, with a 35 - point average, sparked the Oaks in their 131-116 victory over the New York Nets Friday night, hitting for 37 points.

But with 3:17 remaining to play—came the crash. Barry, driving toward the basket, fell heavily on his left knee. With an excited crowd of 3,814 fans watching, Barry lay on the court, writing in pain. Finally he was taken to a dressing room and then to Smithtown, N.Y., General Hospital.

Dr. David Lipton examined Barry and said there was possible injury to the ligaments or cartilage. The doctor didn't think it was serious but he indicated Barry might be out for three weeks.

In other ABA games, New Orleans dropped Dallas 125-106 and Minnesota nipped Kentucky 110-106.

The Oaks, trailing 34-29 after one quarter, erupted for 45 second-period points for a 74-57 margin and were never threatened.

Jim Eakins added 21 points for Oakland while Larry Brown had 18 points and 14 assists. Ron Perry topped New York with 25 points.

Barry, who was in extreme pain in the dressing room, will miss the Oaks' game tonight in Indianapolis. He flew to Oakland and will be treated there.

"I thought it snapped and right then I thought it came right back in," Barry said, referring to the knee. "It never felt like I ripped something. It just felt like a blow."

Westfield Knocks Paltz

DANBURY—It was a crying shame. There are whole weeks that go by in which the State University College, New Paltz basketball team doesn't score 86 points.

And when the Hawks finally found a team against which they could accomplish the feat in a single night, namely Westfield, they gave up 92.

All season, while in the process of compiling a 1-6 record, Hawk coach Doug Sheppard has been trying to do something with shooting percentages that have dipped below the .300 mark far too frequently.

And when his club finally has a night, hitting 29 of 61 attempts from the floor for 47.5 per cent, the defense breaks down.

Pete Kane and Jim Leonardo matched 26-point efforts for the Hawks, and Jeff Berry added 20, a season high. Westfield jumped out to a sizeable lead, and coasted home in the second half, using mostly substitutes to stave off the late Hawk surge.

For Namath--It All Comes Down to One Game

By Gary Kale
UPI Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UPI)—Broadway Joe Namath makes his play for the big date which has eluded him for four frustrating years Sunday when he leads the New York Jets against the defending champion Oakland Raiders in the American Football League's title game.

The Jets, who combine the league's toughest defense with an explosive attack led by the flamboyant Namath, are favored by 2 1-2 points over the Raiders, who beat them 43-32 on Daryle Lamonia's last-minute heroics in NBC's famous Nov. 17 "Heidi Game". This one goes to the finish—on the field and on TV—even if the teams are forced into sudden-death overtime.

The title game, gateway to about $8,000 a man Sunday and the lush Super Bowl against the ante goes to $15,000 a man is for the team which plays in the Super Bowl.

Lamonia completed 206 of 416 passes for 3,245 yards and 25 touchdowns as the Raiders won 12 of 14 regular-season games and then passed the Kansas City Chiefs dizzy in a 41-6 victory last Sunday in the AFL's Western Division playoff game. He has excellent receivers, long or short, in Fred Biletnikoff and Warren Wells and mixes his passing game well with Hewitt Dixon, the No. 3 rusher in the league with 865 yards, and rookie Charlie Smith, who gained 504 yards in 95 carries.

With Lamonia at the throttle, the Raiders gained a league-high 5,696 yards passing and rushing this season. They have still another threat in placekicker George Blanda, who is within field goal range any time the Raiders cross the 50-yard line.

Namath's 1968 statistics are nowhere near as impressive as Lamonia's. Broadway Joe completed 187 of 380 passes for 3,147 yards and 15 touchdowns but he went through one stretch in six straight games in which he did not throw a TD pass. Some experts claim, however, that it was during this period in which Namath matured as a team leader and the Jets became a strong, resourceful unit instead of a one-man passing show.

Namath's favorite receivers are Don Maynard and George Sauer, he has an extremely hard-running back in Emerson Boozer to complement his passing game and the league's Larry Grantham and Ralph Turner. Turner kicked 34 field goals this year although he probably is not as much of a threat as Blanda from long range.

The Raiders had the fourth best defensive record in the AFL and are old hands at putting the rush on Namath with whom they have had some incidents in the past. The Raiders' pass rush is led by Dan Birdwell, Ben Davidson and Ike Lassiter and it is backed by such stars as linebacker Dan Connors, cornerback Willie Brown and safety Dave Grayson.

The Jets' defense limited the opposition to a league low of only 85.4 yards a game rushing. It stars are linemen Verlon Biggs, Gerry Philbin and John Elliott, linebackers Al Atkinson, high scorer in placekicker Jim Baker and safeties Jim Hudson and Billy Baird.

A capacity crowd of 63,000 is assured at Shea Stadium, which will be the site of a championship for the first time. The NBC telecast begins at 12:30 PM EST and the kickoff is scheduled for 1:05 PM EST.

You Can See It On Channel '6'

The live telecast of the American Football League playoff between the New York Jets and Oakland Raiders will be carried by Channel 6 (Schenectady) starting at 1 p.m. Sunday. Kickoff time is 1:05 p.m.

FIGHT OF THE CENTURY—Yes, it would be, could it have taken place. Television viewers, however, will see a computerized version of a Clay vs. Marciano match sometime next winter. The two will settle the dispute in the special film being produced in Miami for presentation on national television. The only undefeated champions in history threw punches at each other for the equivalent of 70 rounds before cameras in a motion picture studio in Miami Dec. 2. The film will be cut and spliced together according to results obtained by a computer.

Baltimore at Cleveland

History Repeats in NFL

By VITO STELLINO
UPI Sports Writer

CLEVELAND (UPI)—History repeats itself in the National Football League Sunday but the Baltimore Colts are determined to change the ending this time.

The last time the Green Bay Packers didn't win the NFL crown was in 1964 when the Baltimore Colts and the Cleveland Browns met in Cleveland for the title. Baltimore was favored but Cleveland won 27-0.

The Packers, who proceeded to win the title in 1965, 1966 and 1967, failed to do it this time and Baltimore and Cleveland will again meet in Cleveland for the NFL title. This time the right to represent the NFL in the Super Bowl at an extra $15,000-per man is also at stake.

One thing is the same, though. The Colts are again favored. The Browns, who don't seem to be taken seriously enough but keep winning games, are shooting for another upset in chilly Municipal Stadium.

The game is not only a rematch of the 1964 title game for the Colts, it's also a rematch of the only losing contest the club has played in this season, Baltimore, which is now 14-1 this year including the Western Conference title victory over Minnesota, was beaten by Cleveland 30-20 in Baltimore earlier in the season.

That was the game in which coach Don Shula shifted to John Uels at halfback while the Colts trailing 14-7. The Browns victimized the ailing Uels and blew the Colts out of the game by intercepting three of his passes.

The time Shula will probably go all of the way with Earl Morrall, who's directed the club most of the season and has moved the club consistently if not spectacularly.

Shula does his best to make it obvious he respects the Browns. "A lot of people thought it was a fluke when they beat us this season but we didn't," he claims. "We know they've got a fine football team and they've proved it." The Browns lost three of their first five games but started an eight-game winning streak with the upset victory over Baltimore and went on to win the Century Bowl '69 crown.

Including the triumph over Dallas in the Eastern Conference title game, the Browns are 11-4 this season.

Of course, defense will once again be the name of this game. Both teams have solid defenses that consistently get the ball in good field position for the offensive units and often break games wide open with interceptions or fumble recoveries.

The two quarterbacks, Morrall and Bill Nelsen of the Browns, are both playing in their first NFL title game to climax what had been rather erratic careers up to this season. Neither one of them is likely to win the game on his own but then neither one is likely to blow it either and that's been the pattern of the season for the Colts and the Browns. The quarterbacking has been consistent enough so it doesn't nullify the rest of the strengths on the team.

The Colts depend a little more on Morrall's arm than the Browns do on Nelsen's because the Browns key their attack to the running of Leroy Kelly. But then the Colt defense is so strong it'll be some task for even Kelly to run against it.

The last time the Colts and Browns met in the title game in 1964, Kelly was on the bench and Jimmy Brown was the star runner while Uels was in his prime for the Colts. The NFL, in a burst of imagination, labeled the game "the runner vs. the passer" and an offensive show was expected. But the score at halftime was 0-0 before Cleveland got rolling in the second half.

This time the score could be 0-0 at halftime and no one would be particularly surprised. Both defenses should be able to do a good job of containing the opposing offense.

In a game of defense like this one, the field goal kicking could be a major difference. The Colts have the edge in this department with veteran Lou Michaels who is consistent and accurate. The Browns have Don Crockett, who finally replaced the aging Lou Groza—who had done the kicking since the Paul Brown days—and has been dependable.

This game could be somewhat of a turning point for the Colts and Shula. Under Shula the last six years, the Colts have a record of 64-13-3 and no club in pro football can match that over the same span.

Yet the Colts have yet to win an NFL title under Shula and haven't won the crown since 1959 when Weeb Ewbank, who'll be going for the AFL title for the New York Jets Sunday, was the coach.

If the Colts don't do it this time, they might start saying the club doesn't win the big ones.

And the Browns have history on their side.

N.Y. Jets Host Raiders

By GARY KALE
UPI Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UPI)—There seems to be something about pro championship football games that brings bad weather to New York.

The last time a title game was played in New York City was in 1962 when Green Bay beat the New York Giants to win the National Football League title at Yankee Stadium. The game was played under icy, freezing conditions, prompting the famous quote from Giant quarterback Y.A. Tittle: "It looks like conditions may be worse than usual."

There's only been one snowfall in New York City this fall but a second one hit Friday—dropping an inch of snow on the city.

The forecast for Sunday is "mostly cloudy, windy and cold."

Joe Namath, who'll be doing the tossing for the Jets at quarterback, claims the cold weather doesn't bother him that much.

Namath is wearing a thin bandage on his right thumb to counteract the bad weather.

"In this weather your thumb gets cold," he said, "when it gets cold, it splits a little. The bandage doesn't cover the part of the finger that grips the ball."

Oakland quarterback Darley Lamonica isn't too thrilled about the prospects of playing at Shea Stadium.

"Counting Buffalo and the Raiders, I guess I've played in Shea about six times. I'm not a great lover of that stadium in any way. Some of the coldest days of my life were spent there."

Lamonica hasn't played here since October of 1967 when the Raiders were beaten on a warm but windy night 27-14. The Raiders didn't play in New York during the regular season but beat New York in Oakland 43-32 in the famous "Heidi" game in which the final minute was cut off the TV screens while Oakland scored two touchdowns.

The forecast for Saturday was rain, indicating the Shea Stadium playing field may be in a sloppy condition for Sunday's bell-ringer.

Namath, appearing impervious to the elements, targeted Don Maynard and George Sauer, his favorite receivers, with "bombs" and short square-outs in practice Friday. Coach Weeb Ewbank made this the last big pre-game heavy session. The Jets will taper off Saturday, using much of the afternoon to go over any flaws the assistant coaches have detected.

Emerson Boozer, recovered from an ankle injury, is Ewbank's choice to start at running back. Bill Mathis is Boozer's backup man. Matt Snell will carry the load for short slants, which Ewbank hopes can turn into longer gains as the Jets forward wall opens holes in the Raider defense.

Kasnar Enjoys the TV Life

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Kurt Kasnar, who would fit into a thimble as Alexander Fitzhugh in the new "Land of the Giants" series, would have difficulty squeezing into a barrel off screen.

Kasnar plays one of the little people on the science fiction show, but he is most definitely life-size in private life.

Once widowed, once divorced, Kasnar, a native of Vienna, lives alone in a two-bedroom house above the Sunset Strip. His terrace commands a view of the city and, having been a New York apartment dweller most of his life, the actor enjoys views and high places.

He has decorated his home with furniture shipped west from Manhattan. Kasnar takes great pride in pointing out that the interior decoration is his own.

"I call it early goulash," he says. "Some of the chairs are recovered. The furniture is comfortable and it is well built."

Two Pugs
Kasnar shares his home with a pair of pug dogs named Cosima and Ludwig. They are still puppies and demand much of his time. More than one friend has suggested that his pets have the same pugnacious appearance as their master.

The actor leaves the dogs to themselves at 6 o'clock every morning to report for work, returning by 7 in the evening. He leaves and returns in the dark.

"Luxury is having Saturday and Sunday to myself," he says, "which is something I never had when I was working in New York plays."

Kasnar takes advantage of the weekends by learning his lines for the coming week, giving lunches for friends and just lying around reading good books.

He claims to be an excellent cook, but relies on instinct rather than cookbooks and special recipes.

On dates he will often bring show.

Kasnar says he is rarely where they combine their culinary arts in the kitchen, many friends nearby who stop inventing dishes as they go by to see him.

Many of his cronies are members of the British colony in Hollywood, including young Dan Massey. Surprisingly, Marlo Thomas of "That Girl" series is a pal. They starred together in England for many months in "Barefoot in the Park."

Unmarried, well paid, and with ample spare time, Kurt Kasnar has built a new life for himself in California that requires nothing more of him than to appear on the set on time and to see that his pug dogs don't go hungry.

City Beat

The Budget--Let's Get a Clearer Picture

"I'm the money man," the mayor has said in the past, "and when it comes to money, I know what I'm talking about."

Presumably, most people don't know what they're talking about when it comes to money. Therefore, the mayor provides little detail on just how he will spend the almost five million dollars appropriated for fiscal '69 in Kingston.

Of course the broad outline is there, listed under such headings as "personal services, equipment and other expenses." One is left to wonder what the salaries are, what equipment will be purchased and "other expenses," means.

The mayor, of course, is an honorable man, but he does tend to be a bit stingy with information on how he is spending the public buck.

We're thinking of the incident concerning the new boiler at the auditorium. It was common knowledge that the old boiler had had it and that a new one was needed to get through this winter. Ergo, an emergency situation where the mayor can bypass the bidding procedure and get the boiler fixed post haste.

And so he did. Quickly and silently. Point is, there should have been at least a brief mention of the fact that the mayor was spending six or seven thousand dollars of the taxpayers' money in an emergency situation. The story eventually came out in the Freeman after County Editor Albert Cawein made an inquiry.

Six or seven thousand dollars is a relatively small item in the city budget but the additional revenue from the sales tax this year is not.

The budget calls for $325,000 but all indications point to a net take for 1968 of more than $500,000. The extra money probably goes to pick up deficits in those departments that were forced to spend more than was budgeted for them. Probably standard procedure. So what's the big secret?

We'd like to see two new practices on these budgets—a year-end accounting and a detailed (line) estimate of the coming year's budget. Then get the whole thing into the hands of any taxpayer who wants it at least two weeks before the public hearing.

BUDDY LYLE is entering his fourth year as Kingston city clerk and despite the sensitivity and responsibility of his job he still maintains a fine sense of humor.

Buddy's opposite number in Portsmouth, N. H., Peter O'Donnell passed along the following "Lament of the Public Servant" by way of the December issue of the International Institute of Municipal Clerks.

One might keep it in mind the next time he wants to level a blast at his alderman, legislator or city clerk.

It goes like this . . .

The public servant's lament
"If I express myself on a subject I'm trying to run things. If I'm silent, I'm dumb or have lost interest . . . If I'm usually at the office, why don't I get out and learn what's going on? If I'm out when they call, why am I not tending to business?"

"If I'm not home at night, I'm out carousing. If I am home I'm neglecting important outside activities and contacts . . . If I don't agree with someone, I'm a bullhead. If I do agree, I don't have a mind of my own . . . If I don't do what is requested I'm a darn poor official. If I do well that's what I'm paid for . . . If I give someone a short answer they want to cut my budget . . . If I attempt to explain the pros and cons of an issue, I'm long winded.

"If I'm well-dressed, I think I'm a big shot. If I'm not, I'm a poor representative of my department . . . If I'm on the job a short time, I'm inexperienced. If I've been there a long time it's time for a change."

And how are things in Glocca Morra?

Rolison to Begin 2nd Term, Predicts Tough Year Ahead

By LYNN MULVANEY
(Editor's Note: Ulster County's three recently elected political representatives were interviewed by the Kingston Freeman this past week with an eye toward getting their view on coming legislation and their preparations for the January sessions of Congress, the State Assembly and State Senate. Today, incumbent Sen. J. P. Rolison talks about what he sees ahead for the next Senate session.)

Sen. Jay P. Rolison, ready to return to his second term as State Senator, sees a "tough year" coming up.

"With the GOP in control of both the Senate and the House, it will have to come up with a viable program," the Republican Rolison says.

"It is especially important that we have a budget by April 1," he suggests, "especially in view of the Democrat's drastic and costly delay last year."

Pessimistic About Taxes
Asked about the rumored increase in the governor's budget, Sen. Rolison said he is "frankly pessimistic" about the coming tax increase.

"I anticipate a substantial budget gap which will run between 700 million and a billion," he said, adding that he wondered how the state was going to keep and entice industry under the circumstances.

Sympathy for the plight of the homeowner was expressed by the Senator who states "Cuts have to be made, but where?"

Using the demands of the schools as an example he said that it is anticipated that per pupil aid requests will go as high as $900 this year.

"This is blackmail and I don't think the Legislature is going to permit it," he said in the interview.

The Poughkeepsie lawyer has strong feelings about other aspects of education too. He anticipates he will reintroduce a bill which calls for New York State Regent's scholarships to be usable in any state rather than just in New York.

"It is not fair to penalize a New York State boy or girl who can't get a particular type of training in the state," Rolison feels that the purpose of the scholarship is not to enhance the New York State School system but benefit its students who will probably come back to live in New York State.

Favors Education Watchdog

He also feels strongly that a review board should be established as a watchdog over the office of Education Commissioner James Allen which presently operates in an autonomous capacity.

JAY P. ROLISON

Interested in decentralization for New York City Schools, the Senator says this is in line with his thinking concerning local control of school boards. "We have a million kids down there," he explained. It is up to us to help with the New York City School problem." Citing the recent disturbances and strikes in the schools there, Rolison feels a bad example has been set for the kids.

Of his own role at Albany, the incumbent goes back to the capitol with a bit more seniority than last year and hopes it will result in his being able to keep the committee assignments and chairmanship he already enjoys. Rolison is chairman of the Commerce and Navigation Commission and is pleased with the assignment for he feels it "ties him in" with the people of his district which borders the Hudson River.

Personally interested too in the other committees he serves, Rolison hopes to continue to work in the field of codes, banking, agriculture and motor vehicle law.

As far as seniority goes, legislators move up with time, on their respective committees. Rolison, commenting on the fact that last week the GOP held a reorganization meeting and designated Earl Brydges as majority leader, said that in spite of seniority, Brydges is the type of man who is apt to pass over people if he thinks his choice is qualified.

But, Rolison cautions, no one throws his seniority over you. Everyone has just as much opportunity to speak as the next person.

Having just pre-filed a bill with Assemblyman Willis Stevens who represents Dutchess-Putnam, Rolison is seeking tax relief for those over 65 years of age, making them eligible for real estate tax exemptions.

He feels also that social security payments shouldn't be included in the $3,000 maximum earning allowed.

The Senator would also like to "try and make more heads or tails" out of civil service requirements, pensions and retirement benefits. He explained that at the present time, for instance, teachers, correction personnel and police all offer varying benefits making the professions competitive in that sense.

Rolison feels there should be some equalization as well as upgrading in order to make state service more attractive than it is at the present time.

Expansion, Addition
Asked what his constituents were most concerned with during the campaign and subsequent weeks, he named crime and disorder, the lack of respect for existing institutions and laws as the topmost anxiety.

Because of this and other concerns, the volume of work now confronting the Senator has increased and he plans to expand his Poughkeepsie office to accommodate it and also open a facility at Kingston.

The volume of work has increased he thinks due to the fact that people are now becoming more aware of who their legislators are and are increasingly dependent upon state officials. This results, he claims, in "our almost becoming omnibusmen."

Two Families Left Homeless Following Fire in Apartments

SAUGERTIES — Ten persons from two families were left homeless here Friday following a fire that gutted their two-apartment home at Partition and Post Streets. There were no injuries reported.

The families of Robert Wolven and his brother Earl Wolven were driven from their apartments in the two-story building shortly before 4 p. m. Firemen said the building was a total loss. The blaze was brought under control at 5:45 p. m. and units of the Saugerties Village fire companies remained at the scene throughout the night.

Firemen said the six children and four adults of the two families escaped with only the clothing they were wearing.

A fund to help the Wolven families has been established and persons are asked to contact Joseph Benjamin at his village flower shop, the Flower Garden.

More than 40 volunteers responded to the fire from all Saugerties Village companies. They were hampered by cold weather and freezing water with ice forming on equipment.

Ammunition stored in the second floor apartment began to explode at the height of the blaze adding to the problems of the firemen.

The property is owned by Salvatore LoBianco of Catskill.

Firemen thanked the public for their cooperation in giving volunteers room to battle the blaze. They were credited with remaining behind fire lines at the scene, located one block from the bus depot in the center of the village.

Agnew Joins Nixon In Florida Confab

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (UPI) —President-elect Richard M. Nixon gathered his national security team today on the shores of Biscayne Bay to help him on such sticklers as Vietnam negotiations and the nuclear nonproliferation treaty. Nixon's advisers were also expected to be sounded out on the choice of men to fill top level posts in the State Department and Pentagon.

A last minute addition to the participants was vice president-elect Spiro T. Agnew.

Nixon fixed 10 a. m. EST as the start of the all-day session. The site was the one-story contemporary beachfront home Nixon recently purchased from Sen. George Smathers, D-Fla., in which he is vacationing and which eventually will be part of the winter White House.

Those invited were defense secretary-designate Melvin Laird; secretary of state-designate William P. Rogers; Henry Kissinger, soon to be presidential adviser for national security affairs; Ambassador William Murphy, Nixon's foreign policy liaison man with the outgoing Johnson Administration; Bryce Harlow, who will serve as Nixon's chief congressional lobbyist; and Gen. Andrew Goodpastor, White House military aide during the Eisenhower administration, now on loan to Nixon until the inauguration.

Press spokesman Allan Woods said Friday the talks "will be wide-ranging in nature, and will center around conversations of organization, programs, and personnel in the foreign policy and national security fields."

Before and after Jan. 20, Nixon will be faced with decisions in the areas of nuclear treaties, Vietnam and appointments to the State and Defense Departments, all of which were likely subjects of discussion at today's meeting.

'A terrific movie

One of the best movies I've seen this year...has the most exciting fifteen minutes of cinema I've seen in I don't know how long.

Edge-of-the-seat tension and super-cool performance by Steve McQueen.

A tight, uncluttered movie as direct and convincing as a punch in the mouth.

Whatever you may have heard about the auto chase in Bullitt is probably true...a terrifying, deafening shocker.

BULLITT is a winner. It fastens your seat belt right from the start. This is a super-movie.

CRIME Flick with a Taste of Genius....An action sequence that must be compared with the best in film history.

Just right for Steve McQueen. Fast, well-acted, written the way people talk, it is dense with detail about the way things work. McQueen embodies his special kind of aware, existential cool.

"Scooter," a Friendly Fox Terrier, Welcomes the New Year With Snow-Covered Nose

Full Week's TV Listing From Dec. 29, Thru Jan. 4

Tempo's Tongue-in-Cheek Resolutions

(TEMPO presents some famous folk making some resolves for New Year's which each and every VIP listed would probably find impossible to keep. Herewith, our tongue-in-cheek solutions for big-wigs on the national scene.)

Abe Fortas: Being a Supreme Court justice instead of Chief Justice is all right, but next time I won't charge college lecture fees, give free advice to the President, or provide Strom Thurmond with any political ammunition.

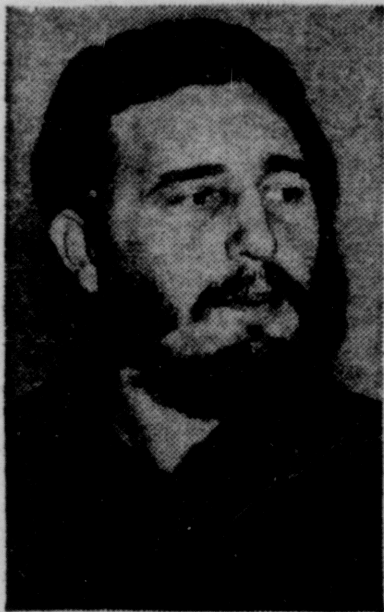

Hippie guru Allen Ginsbert: I will not invite Mayor Daley to New Year's dinner unless, of course, he agrees to eat his own cooked goose with Mace dressing.

Lyndon Baines Johnson: I absolutely refuse to pose for pictures showing my scars in my retirement years.

J. Edgar Hoover: Before I step down from this job, I'll have dossiers on each and every one of the 200,000,000 people in this country.

Fidel Castro: After staying in power for a whole decade, I think I'll take a nice long rest at my place in the country. Like Che used to say, "Being a revolutionary is hard work."

Nelson Rockefeller: I will do my best this year to convince the people of New York that they need another tax hike.

FIDEL CASTRO

RUDY VALLEE

Albert Shanker: I'll get a new speech writer and run for mayor, now that I've learned how to really sock it to 'em.

Richard Nixon: As soon as the inauguration is over, I'll have the Post Office Department print up a stamp with my portrait and make sure the mint casts a coin in my likeness. And I'm installing my barber in the White House so Herblock can't draw any more of those five o'clock shadow cartoons.

Joe Namath: If I can grow a mustache worth $10,000, I can certainly grow a beard worth three times that much. After all, there's other razor blade companies around besides Schick.

Jesse Unruh: I resolve to gain back all those pounds I lost on my diet. Nobody's called me "Big Daddy" since the Chicago Convention.

Stokely Carmichael: If Miriam says "Pata Pata" to me one more time when I ask her to pass the sugar at breakfast, I'm gonna divorce her.

George Gallup: I resolve to stop telling the voters of America what they think.

John Lindsay: Let them ALL go on strike for all I care. I can empty my own garbage and Mary can tutor the kids in Latin and french. Good ole Tom P. F. and the other fellows up at the museum will man the subways; the Nixon girls will help out with the nurses shorttage in the hospitals; and the fuel oil drivers can go fly a kite what with all the fireplaces in Gracie Mansion.

Jim Brown: The next movie reviewer who refers to me as "the black John Wayne" is gonna get his brains scrambled on the 20-yard line.

Tiny Tim: A fellow can get tired of this shoulder-length bob. Maybe I'll get my hairdresser to arrange it in a nice bun.

Penny Ann Early: If I could just get Bill Hartack to propose, I could be a jockey by osmosis.

John Carols and Tommie Smith: We'll REALLY fox 'em next time! Just imagine a clenched fist salute in elbow length WHITE gloves!

New Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird: When I negotiate my new contract with Nixon, I'll have to make sure it doesn't contain an escalation clause.

Adam Clayton Powell: We could resolve all this nonsense about my congressional seat if we'd just make Bimini the 51st state and move my Harlem constituency down there.

Jack Javits: Now that I've won again, I'll never make another of those TV tennis commercials with my kid. The little terror nearly put me in the hospital with that backstroke. After all, when a guy gets to be a senior citizen, he's gotta realize he's no Arthur Ashe any more.

JOHN V. LINDSAY

STOKELY CARMICHAEL

Peter Kastner, TV's "Ugliest Girl in Town:" I'm gonna detrouser the next guy who calls me Twiggy and parade him down Carnaby Street in a miniskirt.

George Romney: If I had brains enough to get out of New Hampshire before the thaw, I'm smart enough to handle a little ole problem like Housing and Urban Development. After all, what's good for American Motors is good for the cities.

Rudy Vallee: If I'm drafted to run for mayor of Los Angeles (and, like I said, I'd consider a draft), I'll make Bing the Alderman-at-Large so we can harmonize together at Council meetings. Then, if I could find a job for Crawford and Ginger, we could have a Charleston party once in awhile.

Dr. Christian Barnard: Anything I can do with the heart, I can do with the tonsils. And, after that, on to the common cold.

Rap Brown: Now that the race riot season is over, I think I'll take a Caribbean cruise. I can stop off in Havana and have a drink at the Hilton with some of the plane hijacking gang.

Frank Sinatra: Now that I fixed it so Nancy could clear a few million a year, I'll have to do something nice to help other young performers — like maybe Frank Jr. and Tina.

Aristotle Onassis: If you think those bar stools on my yacht made out of the skin of a whale's you-know-what are weird and far-out, wait'll you see what I've resolved to order for Jackie to wear to the Inaugural Ball.

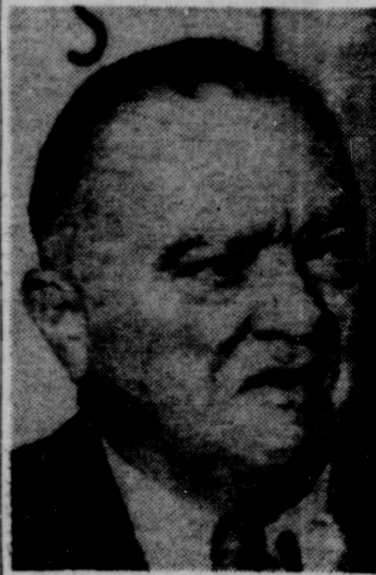

Cleveland's Mayor Carl Stokes: If Eldridge Cleaver comes around here looking for a place to hide-out, I'll just have to tell him where it's at, baby.

Yippie leader Abie Hoffman: I'm gonna have to think up some kind of new protest thing to REALLY bug the Establishment.

Dr. Benjamin Spock: Two years in jail might not be so bad. I could use a little time to update my book.

Mayor Richard Daley: The next time the Yippies come to Chicago, I'll put 'em to work in the stockyards instead of in jail. That'll teach 'em a thing or two about life.

Charles de Gaulle: If I could just get Danny the Red drafted into the French Foreign Legion and pay him with devalued francs, I could succeed in politics without really trying.

J. EDGAR HOOVER

In Which Tempo Peers Into the Future

(Once again TEMPO looks into its crystal ball which, after watching those computerized election returns last November, we find far more trustworthy for forecasting the turn of events than any other means.

Herewith our predictions for what we see in the year ahead as the newsmakers of 1968 enter the bright new months of 1969.)

Elizabeth Taylor will put on a few more pounds and tell reporters she made the weight gain in the hope of being offered the lead in "The Sophie Tucker Story."

The David (Julie Nixon) Eisenhower will live happily ever after.

Pat Nugent and Chuck Robb will give up computers and begin counting the voting returns on their fingers, which will make the job go much easier and faster.

All those viewers who used to gather around the TV set to hate Johnson will gather 'round to hate Nixon.

Ari and Jackie Onassis will spend so much time traveling on their yacht, they'll make the Odyssey look like something out of Greek Mythology.

The New York Giants will FINALLY make it to the Super Bowl. (Well, that's what it says in OUR crystal ball.)

There will be more minor parties on the ballot than ever before next time around.

The Ku Klux Klan will continue its fight against all those un-American subversives who hide behind the Fifth.

Lyndon Johnson, in his new capacity as a teacher, will warn his Texas students of the dangers of bombing North Vietnam, increasing the draft, dabbling in the affairs of Latin-American countries—and all those other extreme right Goldwater policies.

The women of the world will refuse to allow mini-skirts to bite the dust.

Charlie Brown will get a bagful of rocks again when he goes out trick or treating on Halloween.

Batman will not make a comeback on TV or anywhere else.

NASA will land an astronaut team on the moon and they'll bring back chunks of green cheese for souvenirs.

Ted Kennedy will start running for the Presidency in earnest.

The Gallup Poll will show Nixon to be in favor with the large majority of the American people in the early months of his term. By mid-year, it'll show him in a bad slump.

The State Court of Appeals, which decided this year that homosexuals may dance closely together to slow music in a bar, will amend its decision and allow them to dance to fast tunes, too. In gratitude, the Mattachine Society will award the Court its "Love in Bloom" award.

Despit all urgings by the Cancer and Heart Associations people, Americans by the millions will ignore the perils of smoking and plunge headlong into self-destruction.

The residents of Tillson and Zena will continue their blood feuding over which community registers the lowest below zero temperatures every winter.

Phoney U.S. $5 bills will be passed off somewhere in the nation and the public will be warned against a counterfeiting ring.

The man on the street will continue to stick it out there despite the wear and tear on his shoe leather.

Ronald Reagan will insist on making speeches about America's "drifting away from the basic concepts of morality," and the younger generation will keep right on drifting.

Mia Farrow in picking out a new husband, will look for a man who is not so frank.

Mickey Mantle will be elected to Baseball's Hall of Fame.

Ed Sullivan, in tribute to his record-breaking run on television, will be given a special pension plan by the net work.

Mark Lane, having hit the best seller list with his book attacking the Warren Commission, will try again with a tome on what it's like to run for vice-president. He'll make sure to mention his good friend, Dick Gregory, because he knows he'll get a kick out of it.

George McGovern will not wait so long next time, and Hubert Humphrey will never again take any advice from Lyndon.

Floating cities will come into vogue and man will prove that he can so be an island, if he's got enough money.

Robert Moses will definitely NOT try to interest the city of New York in sponsoring another World's Fair.

Mr. Average Voter will show he's not so average all over again.

Autograph Party

Woodstock author, Anthony Robinson, will be feted with an autographing party today from 4 to 6 p.m. at the Catskill Bookshop, 35 Mill Hill Road, Woodstock.

Robinson's new novel, "Home Again, Home Again," has just been published by William Morrow & Company. The author, who has lived in Woodstock since birth, has plotted his new book around a rural art colony in the Catskills and how the colony and its people are affected when a large electronics firm opens a plant only a few miles away.

The public is invited to attend the autograph party and refreshments will be served. Robinson, son of the late novelist, Henry Morton Robinson of "The Cardinal" fame, is the author of two previous novels, one involving the peace time Navy; the other about crime and passion among the polo playing, yachting rich of Long Island.

Woodstock Artist

Woodstock artist Frank Alexander will instruct adult classes in Creative Art during the winter session at Albany Institute of History and Art. Alexander is new on the teaching staff at the Institute and will offer a class in drawing and oil painting, to which beginners are welcome.

The course will run for 10 weeks, from Jan. 14 through March 18; will be held Tuesdays from 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

During the spring session at the Institute, Woodstock artist "Brock" Brokenshaw will return to teach classes.

ROBERT DE CORMIER FOLK SINGERS

One Word Describes Them--It's 'Great!'

Something of an entertainment miracle—that's the electrifying De Cormier Singers. They have been known to really fracture audiences, which roar, chant and applaud with obvious glee, when they take to the stage to perform from their vast repertory of songs of many nations. The simple concert form is shunned by the De Cormier Singers, who bring to any program all the verve and excitement of a theatrical entertainment.

Area residents will be offered a chance to hear this entertainment miracle when the group with its 14 men and women vocalists, plus three instrumentalists, performs here in Kingston on Wednesday, Jan. 22, at the Community Theatre. The DeCormier Singers will appear locally under the auspices of

The Community Concerts Association.

Still young as a group, the Singers made their bow in 1962 in a downtown New York City showcase. And even though they got their start during the longest blackout in the history of the city's daily newspapers, the word of mouth was so good, they needed no further publicity for instant success.

The Critics Rave

They are indeed admirable and astonishing, different, exciting and magnificent, beautiful, happy and rousing—all adjectives the critics have used in profusion in describing their impact on audiences.

On tours in the U.S. and Canada, this chorus of folk song singers have presented flawless evening after flawless evening.

Still they are folk singers only in that they start with basic folk patterns and embellish them with the most professional of variations, discipline and artistry. They leave a lasting impression and spellbound audiences wherever they go.

They've played to solid, sold-out concert tours for the past two seasons and standing ovations.

Much of the group's success must be credited to the theatrical know-how and musical good taste of its founder, Robert De Cormier. Before forming his own group, he gained fame as conductor and arranger for the celebrated Harry Belafonte during personal appearances and recording dates. He was also responsible for the popularity of the Belafonte Folk Singers and his present group was the natural outgrowth of his experience with the Belafonte troupe.

The composer of many Broadway, TV and movie scores and original folk cantatas, he is one of that rare breed known as a super-professional.

A Happy Evening

Just as super-professional are the De Cormier Singers, and those with the foresight to attend their concert here Jan. 22 will be treated to a happy evening. Many of the songs to be sung have been recorded by the Singers in their five albums, released by Command Records.

If you take delight in new concepts of concert entertainment, you'll find De Cormier and his Singers have achieved their aim of recreating the cultures of many lands through a myriad of artistic means. Variety is the keynote of their programs with songs featured from England, Scotland, Ireland, Norway, Russia, Poland, Croatia, French Canada, Africa and the West Indies. American folk songs are included, too, as well as a group of Negro spirituals.

When the De Cormier Singers perform, movement is fused with song, lighting enhances the mood, and varied instrumental accompaniment provides appropriate shades of aural color. So it is that the group transports its audience instantly from the wilds of Africa to the fjords of Scandinavia, and from the steppes of Russia to the hills of Tennessee.

Small wonder, then, that the concerts of the De Cormier Singers have been hailed as a unique theatrical experience—fabulous, electrifying and spontaneous.

How Goes It With the Ski Enthusiasts?

Well, here it is almost New Years and no snow of any significance. The situation hasn't seemed too conducive to "The Lift Line-At-Nine Crowd," but an avid ski enthusiast, and especially a Trail Sweeper, is never hindered by a little problem like no snow. It's just that you have to do a little traveling to find the snow. I've already done some snow hunting this season with great success.

Early November found me preparing for Trail Sweepers Open House and thinking about the ski trip a few of us were planning on Thanksgiving. Somehow word reached me there was snow in Vermont. In fact, some 36 to 42 inches of it and Killington ski area was open. Impulsive type that I am, I decided to join a few equally nutty cohorts and give it a try. By the morning of Nov. 10 at 5:30 a.m. we were on the road. For those of you who have never been to Killington, I find the best route is up the Thruway to the Northway (Rt. 87) and take Exit 20 for Rt. 149 and Whitehall. This brings you to Rt. 4 Take Rt. 4 through Rutland to the Killington turn-off. It's about 3½ hours from Kingston. Killington, Vermont, is one of the major ski areas in Southern Vermont and well worth the trip. Killington was excellent that day and other than the nasty looks we got from deer hunters, it was great. The price for lift tickets seems to be sky-rocketing these days and I found that an all-day lift ticket at Killington is now about $8.50. You'll also find the same prices at the other major areas in Vermont.

The next November weekend I dreamed I was Jean-Claude Killy and headed for Mt. Snow. Advertised as one of the world's best ski facilities, Mt. Snow has enough slopes to suit everyone. Only a 2½ to 3 hour drive from the Kingston area, a skier can get in a full day of skiing and return that same night. The lodge at Mt. Snow is an interesting place in itself. If you enter on a very cold day, be careful not to fall into the heated outdoor pool, where steam rises so thick you have difficulty finding your way. Inside there's ample room to eat and an indoor ice skating rink for diversification. But, you'd better be prepared for high prices on just about everything. This is true of all major ski areas throughout the East.

It didn't take long to learn I wasn't as good as I thought I was, so I recuperated the rest of that week and on Nov.

17 headed for the annual Trail Sweepers Dryland Ski Instructions at Phoenicia.

Everytime I've put my skis on my car this year. It's rained and our dryland skiing was anything but dry. Even so there were about 80 people at the slopes and I figured I must have really stirred up some ski spirit with my last "Think Snow" article in Tempo. All in all, everyone had a good time and some valuable experience was acquired by those who braved the elements.

Heading for Jay

The next weekend, I suffered from a very serious illness. It's called "Cancer of the Wallet," so I made no fantastic voyages. This brings us to Thanksgiving weekend. Everything was planned; the "Mighty Traveling Trail Sweepers Jug Band" was heading for Jay Peak. Jay, located on the Vermont Canadian border, is noted for its early skiing and we planned to take full advantage of it. Zero hour was to be at 1 a.m. Friday morning so we could ski all day. Then it rained all Thanksgiving day, not only in this area, but all over the East. All plans were cancelled Thursday night, but being a Trail Sweeper, having ski spirit, and being a complete nut, (not necessarily in that order), I decided to go anyway. I left Saugerties in the rain at 12:30 a.m. and hit a heavy thunderstorm in the Adirondacks. The fog made it even tougher and when I passed something that looked like an ark with a bearded buy and a bunch of animals on it, I got a little worried. When I reached Plattsburgh, I decided to push on to Mt. Tremblant in Canada. A word of warning about traveling the Northway. Be sure to have a full tank of gas before you leave the Albany area; you might not find another gas station open until Montreal if you're traveling late at night. Meanwhile, back on the road, I left Montreal and headed North. I finally found it—Snow!

Mt. Tremblant might sound a little far to go for a weekend but if you have three or four days or a week, it's a beautiful ride. Only 330 miles from Kingston and it takes about six

How Goes It With the Ski

hours driving time. (Honest folks — no speeding.) It's a straight run up the Northway through some of the most beautiful scenery in the state. At the Border Rt. 87 becomes Autoroute 15 which takes you right to the Laurentians. And there's only one traffic light between Kingston and Mt. Tremblant.

Lodgings in the Mt. Tremblant area are beautiful and you'll have no trouble finding accommodations if you write ahead. Average price for a room is about $18 per person which includes all meals. Many hotels and motels offer some great package deals. I stayed at one for $36 for three days with meals and lift tickets included. That touch of French-Canadian hospitality is really tremendous and you'll find that prices on the whole are lower than the stateside ski areas. This, added to the fact that your dollar is worth more in Canada, makes for a memorable trip.

To give you a general idea of what to expect on a ski weekend or a week, here's what I found in just about every area I've traveled to. Usually included in the price of lodging is all your meals. Ski lodges provide hearty meals and huge breakfasts. A single skier can usually get a room in a bunkhouse or dorm for about half the price of a regular room. You'll find quite a party atmosphere prevails in this type of lodging. The best advice I can give is to make reservations if you plan to stay in one particular area.

That brings you up to date on my travels. Coming up immediately is a trip to Sugarloaf Mt. in Maine, back to Canada for New Year's, up to Stowe in January, out to Squaw Valley, California, in February, and I'll finish off the month at the Winter Carnival in Quebec. You're probably wondering how I afford to do all this? So are my creditors. Join the Trail Sweepers Ski Club and find out how you can reduce the cost of your ski trips drastically. Hope to see you at our meetings. (By MIKE BREEN)

A TRAIL SWEEPER LEARNS HOW TO GET UP AFTER LEARNING HOW TO FALL.

Let's Go to Canada For New Years Fun

A colorful ceremony that dates from the fifth century is held each January in Quebec City, the historic capital of Quebec Province.

It's the blessing of 'les petits pains (little loaves) of Sainte-Genevieve,' in commemoration of the Patron Saint of Paris.

On Jan. 3, thousands of little loaves of bread, baked by the womenfolk of the parish of Notre Dame des Victoires, will be carried through the narrow, winding streets of the old part of the city to a small side chapel. There, they will be blessed and distributed to the people of the city.

Sainte-Genevieve was credited with saving fifth century Paris from attacking Huns by working out a ration system when food supply lines were cut off.

Centuries later, in Quebec, starving French colonists prayed for the Sainte's help. They survived the winter and, in gratitude, revived the old Parisian custom of baking and blessing little loaves of bread on Sainte-Genevieve's feast day—a colorful custom which has survived to the present.

After San Francisco, Vancouver, British Columbia boasts the largest Chinatown in North America. But its annual Chinese New Year's celebration is second to none.

A traditional Chinese dragon will lead a mammoth parade and there will be fireworks and dancing in the streets when this western port city helps its Chinese citizens usher in the 'Year of the Cock' on Jan. 18.

Traditional costumes will be worn, and Chinese delicacies will be served.

When the ice freezes thick over the St. Lawrence River in the Canadian province of Quebec, it's the signal for fun fishing at La Perade. This tiny community 60 miles west of Quebec City, celebrates winter with an ice fishing carnival that lasts from Christmas Day to the middle of February. That's when the tiny, tasty tommycod swarm upstream to spawn.

A village of heated huts rises on the frozen river and happy-go-lucky anglers consider this the highlight of the social season. It's a time for celebrating in the grand manner and visitors are always invited to join in. Oh yes, they catch fish, too!

Blondie Cancelled

On Jan. 16, CBS will replace its "Blondie" series at 7:30 p.m. Thursdays with a new situation comedy skit called "The Queen and I," starring Larry Storch and Billy De Wolfe. The crew of an aging ocean liner constantly frustrates efforts of the owners to get rid of this financial liability.

"An Old Rip Contact"

STEVE McQueen is a San Francisco police lieutenant in "Bullitt," the film about crooks and crime which opened Christmas Day at Walter Reade's Mayfair Theatre here. One of the finest and fastest-paced movies of its type to come along in a long time, it's scheduled for a lengthy run locally; will stay on at the Mayfair through Jan. 14.

MOVIES

Bullitt

There's rarely anything under the Christmas tree with our name tag on it since whatever spare cash exists around our house goes into presents for the kids. But this year our stocking runneth over in spite of all that. It's all because of the Mayfair Theatre, which last week brightened the holidays by giving us that coolest of all cats in a cool movie, James Coburn and "Duffy," and — this week — followed through with the second coolest man on film, job to keep a state's witness

Steve McQueen in "Bullitt."

"Bullitt" is a film to ring those bells over, mainly because it is reminiscent in style of those good, ole, rootin' tootin' Warner Bros. crime films of the '30s. But to the Bogart-Cagney syndrome, it has added a distinct touch of swinging today. A polished piece of cinema, it painstakingly watches a San Francisco police lieutenant, a loner named Frank Bullitt (Steve McQueen), trying to play it honest and straight in a world that is anything but. It's his alive, and that's not easy what with crookedness abounding, cronies being gunned down, witnesses done in, and the boss of the police force (played by Robert Vaughn in a definite switch from his Man from U.N.C.L.E. role) giving him a hard time. The boss wants his hide because he can't be bothered obeying orders. On top of all that, he's having trouble with his girl (Jacqueline Bisset), who accuses him of "living in a sewer."

The Gritty City

Sewer or not, it's fascinating in its exploration of the sensuous aspects of the physical world a policeman encounters on a case and in the chase. The gritty city comes to life at a fast pace, and McQueen does his own driving in a slambang chase scene that has cars careening all over the fabled San Francisco hills, in roller coaster fashion.

A total McQueen fan to begin with, we do not exaggerate when we say he gives his finest, most disciplined performance in "Bullitt." As a beleaguered man of the law, he is subtle, swaggering, sensible, tense and sophisticated as called for.

There is no denying the violence in this film but, oddly, McQueen uses a gun only once. Still, even with the violence, we found gumshoeing around the city with Steve heady entertainment; and much of his clenched-fist, furious concentration rubbed off on us. You can actually taste the tension in this film, as the camera probes surroundings so skillfully that when the action comes, it erupts in jerking surprise.

"Bullitt" is worth the attention of any serious audience and it's obvious that if there was a Steve McQueen on the local police force of every city, there'd be none of this business about police rioting and breakdowns of respect for men in blue.

The Light Brigade

If you're in our age group, you probably remember Errol Flynn as the glory boy who charged across the Crimean plains, with romantic good sportsmanship, into a situation where even angels would fear to tread. That was in the first film version of "The Charge of the Light Brigade," which make patriotic heroes of a British cavalry troop that bugled and rode itself to certain death in the Crimea in the 1850's.

The latest remake of "The Light Brigade," which opens Wednesday at Walter Reade's Community Theatre, has had to do without the services of the dashing Errol—and has dispensed with most of the romanticism. As directed by Tony Richardson (probably Britain's best director), the movie no longer glorifies the comradeship of war. It has become a searing indictment of English social conditions in the 1850's—conditions that led to her brutal defeat in the Crimea. No longer does the crack cavalry troop ride into the jaws of death with courageous smiles and love of the motherland. They are

THE BEATLES pop up, over and into the Sea of Holes in "Yellow Submarine," the animated film with music which is enjoying an extended run at Kingston's Community Theatre. Visually striking in its vivid colors and slightly psychedelic action, it sometimes falls short in its musical score. Still, it's enjoyable entertainment for the holidays; will be on screen at the Broadway movie house through Dec. 31.

TV's Highlights and Sidelights

We suppose it was inevitable, but it depresses us nevertheless. "The Doris Day Show" on CBS has been voted "Favorite New TV Show" of the season by readers of a national TV magazine. We weren't polled but, had we been, it wouldn't have gotten our vote. "Julia," starring Diahann Carroll, was the runner up, with Here Comes The Brides, Mod Squad, and The Name of the Game, ranking among the top five most popular shows of the year. We find it easier to agree with the "Dubious Award" category which listed the "Least Liked Shows" as The Don Rickles Show, The Ugliest Girl in Town, and The Beautiful Phyllis Diller Show. In fact, all three shows are so unpopular, they've been cancelled by the networks. Among last year's least liked programs was The Jerry Lewis Show, which is still running. Obviously, Dean Martin's old side-kick has plenty of pull somewhere.

Although Dick Cavett's daytime show is going off the air on Jan. 24, he'll be re-introduced by ABC-TV this spring as host of a three-nights-a-weekly and prime time talk show, patterned along the lines of his current daytime program.

A local lady, who evidently plans to laugh all the way to the post office, penned us a card to ask where she can write Arte Johnson and Henry Gibson of Laugh-In. She can address her letters to them at NBC, in beautiful downtown Burbank, Calif.

Float of the Year

If you watch the Tournament of Roses Parade on TV on New Year's Day, be sure to look out for the Kodak float. It's always a spectacular one, but this year should be even more so. Twenty-three children's building blocks make up the float, with a dozen of them revolving to display 32 pictures of children, made out of vegetable seeds and flower petals. What are little boys and girls made of? Onion, carrot, milo, radish, cucumber, parsnip, lettuce and pepper seeds, iris, rose leaves, daffodils, carnations and orchids, that's what.

If you're beginning to feel that you haven't seen anything worth mentioning on TV of late and that most of what you have seen has been old, it's because CAROL BURNETT often aids and abets Jonathan Winters and sometimes the situation is vice versa as the two talented comics pepetrate one or another stanza of their own shows. If Carol appears solemn in this shot, she probably has good reason. Guests seldom come off unscathed by the Winters wit.

TV has a tendency to dump such programs into what it calls "dog week," the holiday season when there's less interest in TV viewing.

Still, things weren't too bad this past week. Among programs we deemed excellent were:

"The Whole World Is Watching," the PBL investigation into possible bias in network TV news. It examined the pressures that determine what news gets on the air, probed whether network newsmen are practicing some kind of "social engineering," and investigated competition for ratings and the honesty of TV interviews with politicians and other public figures.

When John Fischer, counsel to Senator Everett Dirksen and Congressman Gerald Ford, charged David Brinkley with being prejudiced in his presentation of the news and consistently coloring the commentary, Brinkley snorted, "Nonsense!" Then Brinkley added that he doesn't strive for objectivity anyway, only for fairness.

"A TV Concert at Carnegie Hall," which presented that magnificent pianist, Vladimir Horowitz, in a holiday rerun that was a profound viewing and listening experience. No vocal or camera intrusion interfered with his concert by works of Chopin, Scarlatti, Schumann and Scriabin.

Wednesday Night Movies, which was not a movie at all but a warm dramatization of the origination of the most famous of Christmas hymns, "Silent Night." Kirk Douglas narrated and James Mason was Franz Gruber, who composed the hymn from the poem by Josef Mohr. A delightful feature was the Vienna Boys Choir singing both "Silent Night" and "Stille Nacht."

DEANNA LUND MANICURES one of the many giant hands which dominate the action in Land of the Giants, the ABC-TV series aired on Sunday evenings. As rabid viewers know, Gary Conway and Kurt Kasznar are among the astronauts exploring a planet on which all the inhabitants are giants.

"The Play of Daniel," a colorful medieval music drama out of 12th century France, with authentic period costumes and instruments to enhance the production. Performed in The Cloisters of upper Manhattan by the New York Pro Musica, the play related the story of the prophet Daniel, his encounter with King Belshazzar, his famous reading of the handwriting on the wall, and his miraculous deliverance from the lion's den.

Music played on such exotic instruments as the recorder, rebec, hurdy-gurdy, psaltry, and bell carillon backed the rich pageantry of the production.

THE PICK OF THE PROGRAMS FOR THE WEEK AHEAD:

Tonight, Sat., Dec. 28

THE DAM BUILDERS (Channel 17, 6:30 p.m.). Nature's delicate balance among life forms—how it is sustained and how man sometimes inadvertently upsets it—is explored. Among the contrasts: the "natural" effects of a beaver dam with the disruptive changes in life patterns that frequently accompany a man-made dam.

Artists and Engineers

Experiments in Art and Technology, Inc. will hold its first area meeting on Saturday, Jan. 4 at 2 p.m. in the Art Gallery of State University College at New Paltz. Artists of all disciplines, engineers, and representatives of local industry are being encouraged to attend. EAT's avowed purpose is to catalyze the inevitable active involvement of industry, technology and the arts. Toward this end, EAT has assumed the responsibility of developing an effective collaborative relationship between artists and engineers. Additional information is available by writing directly to Experiments in Art and Technology, Inc., 9 East 16th Street, New York, N.Y. 10003, or to the temporary area coordinator, Bob Liikala, Box No. 6, SAB, State University College, New Paltz, N. Y. Anyone wishing to be notified of further EAT activity in the area should inform Mr. Liikala. At the first meeting on Jan. 4, examples of technological art forms will be presented and discussed.

A Holiday Songfest

Pete Seeger, our folksinging neighbor over Dutchess County way, starred in a holiday songfest that paid homage in music to the ideals that lead men out of darkness — on a program shown last week on TV's Channel 17.

"Circle of Lights" was a colorful celebration of the coming of winter and the hope for all peoples implicit in the current festive season.

The program originated from a rustic New England coach house in Manchester, Mass., a roomy old place transformed into a casual and lively home. In this atmosphere, Peter Seeger and his friends — all folksingers — joined together for an informal party.

On hand was gospel singer Bernice Reagon, remembered for her appearance at the Hudson River Sloop Restoration picnic and for her performance on Seeger's NET special, "Roomful of Music;" Tony Saletan, a frequent contributor to NET's "What's New;" the Pennywhistlers, six young ladies from South Africa who have won fame for their lively rendition of songs from Europe and their native land, and who appeared at the Woodstock Playhouse this past summer; Doc Watson, brilliant guitar player and singer from the Appalachian Mountain region; and of course, balladeer Seeger to lead the festivities.

The program was produced for the Eastern Educational Network under a grant from the Ford Foundation.

First Things First

COTGRAVE, England (UPI)
 —Parish authorities announced this week that Sunday evening services will be held earlier from now on so as not to conflict with the serialized television version of "The Forsyte Saga."

Lots of Nothing

ROVANIEMI, Finland (UPI)
 —Relays of Finns kept a vacuum cleaner running in November and December to establish what they claim as a new-world record of 620½ hours of continuous cleaning.

A Chance to Win Poetry Prize

Kansas City Poetry Contests will offer $1,900 in cash prizes plus the opportunity for a poet to have a new book of poems published by the University of Missouri Press. Entries submitted on or before Feb. 1, 1969 will be eligible for prizes in four categories.

Major prize is the Devins Memorial Award for a full-length book manuscript. The winning poet will receive a $500 cash guarantee against royalties as well as assurance of publication by the University of Missouri Press. Nancy Sullivan, Saul Touster, Nancy Willard and Edsel Ford have won this award in past years.

Like the Devins Memorial Award competition, the Kansas City Star awards are open to American poets without limitation on age or residence. Seven $100 prizes for single poems will be provided in the Star contest.

Other Categories

The contests include two other categories: The Hallmark Honor Prizes, six $100 prizes for single poems submitted by full-time students of colleges and universities; and the H. Jay Sharp Prizes, four $25 prizes for single poems written by high school students of Missouri and bordering states.

Prize winners will be announced April 24, 1969, at the closing reading of the 1968-69 American Poets Series of the Kansas City Jewish Community Center. The reading will be given by Carolyn Kizer, Director of the Literary Program of the National Council of the Arts.

All entries in each of the four contests are judged anonymously. Judges in the past have included William Stafford, Winfield Townley Scott, Reed Whittemore, Donald Justice and Robert Penn Warren.

Actress on Jury

Actress Agnes Moorehead of the ABC "Bewitched" series will be the United States' jury member for the International Television Festival in Monte Carlo Feb. 3-15.

ABC Bowling

ABC brings back its "Pro Bowlers Tour" program for the eighth season on Jan. 11. It will be seen from 3:30 to 5 p.m. Saturdays, covering leading tournaments throughout the country.

A Brutal Little War

The Civilizing Mission by A.J. Barker (Dial Press, $7.50): The sad story of wicked and brave men who carried out, permitted and suffered Italy's 1935-36 conquest of Ethiopia.

It was a brutal little war and because Benito Mussolini sought both to impress the world with Italian Fascism as the heir of Rome's legions and to avenge Italy's frustration at past defeats and the sour victory of World War I. It was important because it was the first foreign victory of either Il Duce's Italy or Adolf Hitler's Germany.

Italy was weak, underfed, overpopulated, armed with feeble industry but fired by Mussolini's gaudy speeches. Ethiopia, under Emperor Haile Selassie, was emerging from the African dark ages. Fifty years before it had defeated an Italian invasion. The little emperor, almost alone, was trying to prepare for the next challenge. He knew it was coming. His was the only independent black nation in Africa and Italy wanted a colony.

They Failed Him

Selassie depended on the League of Nations, on Britain. Both failed him, as did France and the rest of the world. The men who made the failure plus Il Duce and the Ethiopian emperor are the main characters of this tragedy.

The war was rough, in a boiling mountain climate. Sheer firepower won for an Italian army who used gas against barefooted warriors, bombed villages which had a rifle for defense and suffered the indignity of losing a brush or two with the barefeet.

In the end, in World War II, Britain chased out the Italians and Selassie came back. War finally won him the victory that appeals to the League had not.

Doing It Leisurely

EUROPE ON SATURDAY NIGHT. By John Gould. Little, Bown. $5.95.

At age 60, a Maine farmer set out to tour Europe—but not on the wings of a jet nor with schedules laid out by his friendly travel agent. John and Dorothy Gould did it the hard way, but he assures you it's the right way to savor the real Europe.

They took a freighter from Montreal to Hamburg, and about three months later returned on another freighter. In the interim they picked up a car at a European factory and probed the byroads of Germany, France, Denmark, Britain, Belgium, Luxembourg and Italy.

Gould gives highest marks to Germany and France—one reason may be that he knew some of their languages, and thus found the natives friendly. The Goulds considered the British standoffish and unaccommodating. When only 40 miles from Rome they decided to skip the Eternal City. They had found Italy dirty, and decided they could get better Italian food in New England. And the traffic was too much. Gould writes: "I could save thousands of lives annually in Italy if they'd give me some pliers and the authority to cut the wires on horn buttons."

Gould is a bit more than a farmer. He has written several delightful books about Maine, and does weekly reports from the farm for the Christian Science Monitor. This book does not quite come off, unless as a sort of guidepost to leisurely Americans thinking of a similar safari. Even so, it has some absorbing passages, including a hilarious description of German plumbing.

Carr's Eerie Murder Mystery

Papa La-Bas, by John Dickson Carr. (Harper and Row. $5.95): The name "John Dickson Carr" on a book jacket leads the seasoned reader to expect a murder mystery with a considerable touch of the eerie, set in London sometime between 1660 and 1870.

"Papa La-Bas," Carr's latest, provides ample portions of murder and the macabre but the subtitle, "A Novel of Old New Orleans," lets the reader know at once that the time and place are not as before.

The time, in fact, is 1858, and the detective is Judah P. Benjamin, then a U.S. Senator but soon to become a stalwart rebel.

Successively attorney general, secretary of war and secretary of state of Jefferson Davis's Confederate government.

Much About Voodoo

The title is a Voodoo name for the devil, and the African cult is an important plot element. The presence of Marie Laveau, New Orleans' "Voodoo Queen" (a person who actually existed), is felt throughout the book, though she never actually appears.

Another real person who is often mentioned but never seen is Delphine Lalaurie, who was hounded out of New Orleans in 1834 on a charge of torturing slaves which appears to have had no foundation in fact.

The characters with whom the book is principally concerned, however, are fictional with the exception of Benjamin.

If there is somewhat less mood in "Papa La-Bas" than usual in Carr's books, there is considerably more action. The brooding mystery of the main plot is offset by the happy humor of the romantic subplots.

"Papa La-Bas" is a thoroughly enjoyable book.

needlessly annihilated because of the stupidity and ineptness of those in command.

The film is bitingly anti-war in its description of the events that led to this historical military debacle; shows how the senile commander-in-chief, through his unquestioning chain of command, brings about the slaughter of his men. Political cartoons of the period, cleverly animated, are used to show the situation in 1850, when powerful Britain, seeing the opportunity for still more glory, comes to the defense of Turkey, threatened by Russia. The military is all-powerful, living conditions are bad, and death from disease is rampant.

History and the gore of battle have not been dealt with lightly here and what emerges is an excellent film. Excellent, too, is the cast. Trevor Howard is the brutal martinet Lord Cardigan; John Gielgud is the antiquated commander, Lord Raglan; and David Hemmings is the rebellious young officer, appalled by the petty incompetence of those in command.

Yellow Submarine

The Beatles appear in cartoon form as the stars of this animated film about a voyage to a place called Pepperland on a yellow submarine. Once there, the quartet rescues the Pepperlanders from the Blue Meanies. In the end, just as on many of their rock'n' roll records, love conquers all. Even though The Beatles were better live (as in their rollicking film, A Hard Day's Night), the mop-toppers turned longhair are breaking attendance records everywhere with "Yellow Submarine." For our money, however, the real star of this underwater and on the ground trip has to be the cartoon artist responsible. He's filled the film with so many visual puns, dazzling colors, and pop art figures that the boys from Liverpool have to take second place. There's also lots and lots of music, and it's continuing at Walter Reade's Community Theatre through Dec. 31.

Modern Millie

It's gay, it's lilted, and it's a romantic comedy with music. It's "Thoroughly Modern Millie," now playing at Woodstock's Tinker Street Cinema. The Technicolor romp won an Academy Award for best music score; has been around the local circuit before—but should be seen if you missed it the first time.

Starring Julie Andrews, Mary Tyler Moore, Carol Channing and James Fox, and co-starring

John Gavin and Beatrice Lillie, it's a story with music of the Twenties—the flapper era—set in New York. Julie's a small town girl in the big city, working as a secretary and looking for a boss she can marry. Most of the fun centers around a hotel for single young ladies, operated by Bea Lillie as a front for her white slave traffic business.

Comedies and Science Fiction Rode High in 1968

WALTER MATTHAU and JACK LEMMON made movie comedy history in "The Odd Couple" as two Manhattan roommates who were definitely not made for each other. It was one of the really great films of the outgoing year.

WHAT THE MOD, MAD motorcyclist was doing this year came across in film after film after film. This scene is from "Angels From Hell," but it could just as well have been from any of the innumerable cycle films geared for the teenage trade that monopolized much of the silver screen in 1968.

DORIS DAY showed no signs of losing her perennial popularity in the year just ending. As a widow with three sons, she wed Brian Keith, a widower with a possessive daughter—and found that love the second time around is great, but marriage is where the headaches start. It all happened in the romantic comedy, "With Six You Get Eggroll."

DON KNOTTS also contributed to the comedy relief offered on film in 1968. Typecast again as a weak little worm who turns and triumphs after a series of pratfalls, he's shown here disguised as an Indian maid being offered forbidden firewater, in scene from "The Shakiest Gun in the West." It was a favorite film of rural audiences and kids in 1968.

JIM BROWN challenged Sidney Poitier for the title of "Negro Matinee Idol of the Year" in 1968, by returning to the scene of past glories in "The Split." The former all-Pro Cleveland Browns football great and record-breaking fullback also drew acting kudos for his role in "Dark of the Sun."

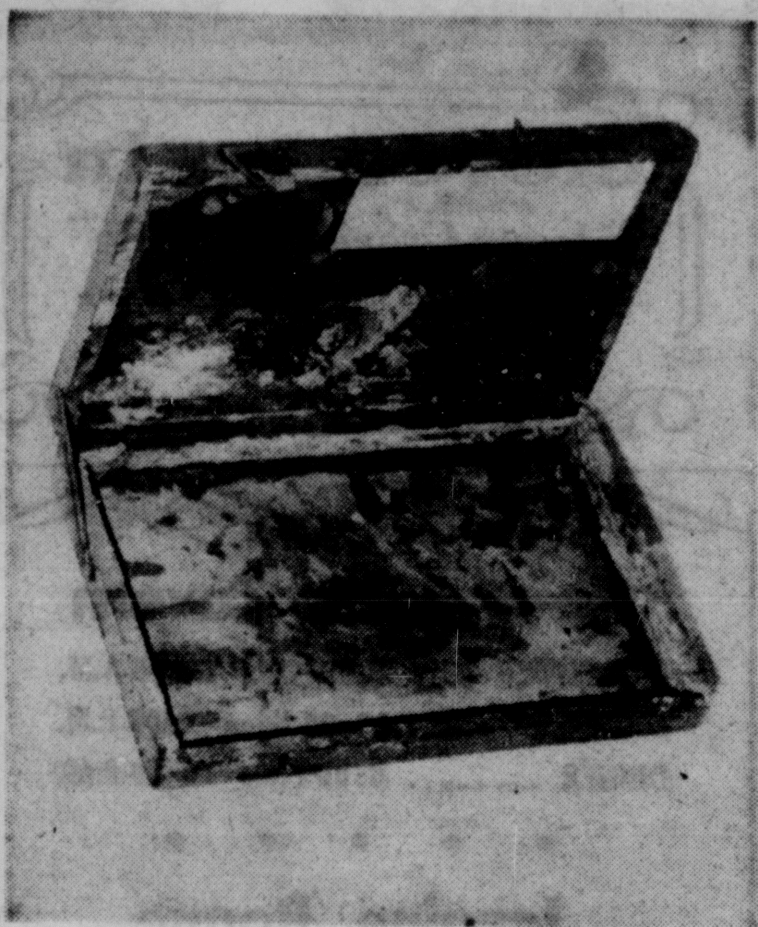

FAR-OUT SCENE FROM "BARBARELLA" shows Jane Fonda as a female space astronaut ascending ramp to rescue her angel friend, John Phillip Law, from motley crowd on a planet in the year 40,000. The science fiction film came into its own in 1968 via such movies as "Barbarella" and "2001: A Space Odyssey."

SINGER-ACTRESS BARBRA STREISAND and Dancer Tommy Tune (L) romped through the "Put on Your Sunday Clothes" number in this scene from the movie musical, "Hello Dolly!" Musicals were big in '68 and this shot from "Dolly" was filmed in nearby Garrison, on the Hudson, which was reconstructed to resemble an old Yonkers street.

Art, Music, Culture Made '68 News

25—THE KINGSTON DAILY FREEMAN, DEC. 28, 1968

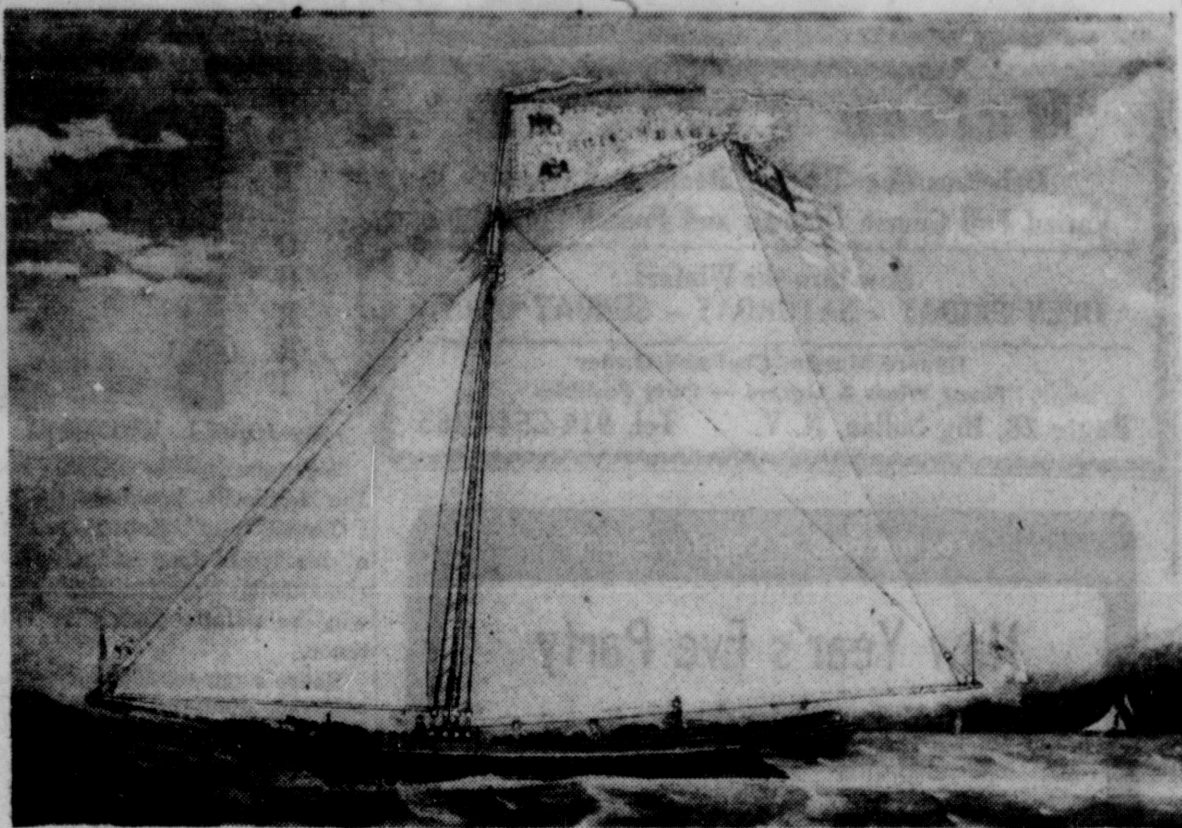

JOHN VANDERLYN'S PAINT BOX shows every indication of having seen constant use. It was also the constant center of attraction for visitors who streamed to the Vanderlyn Room of Kingston's Senate House this year. Vanderlyn, one of the finest portrait painters of the 1800's, is still honored today as interest in the art of his times enjoys a revival.

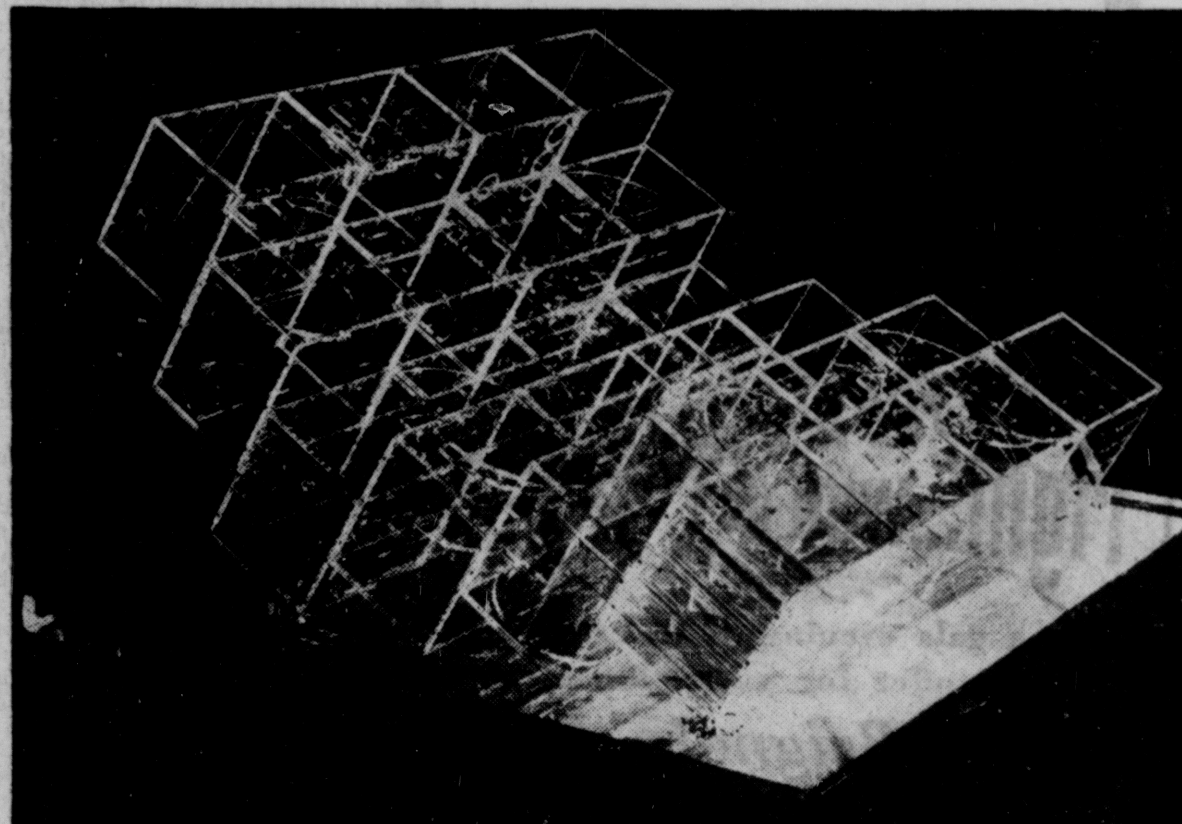

RETINAL ART has a way of making some viewers slightly dizzy. Others find the eyes responding to such paintings as it has never done to a pastoral scene or figure drawing. This print by America's Henry Pearson personifies the media; was exhibited in this area earlier this season in a traveling lithograph show.

ONE OF THE MORE interesting art exhibitions of 1968 was the Memorial Show at the Woodstock Artists Association, honoring the husband-and-wife team of Konrad and Florence Cramer. Among the paintings, photographs and memorabilia on display were several of Mr. Cramer's "He and She" works, such as the one reproduced here.

INTEREST IN HUDSON RIVER heritage reached something of an all-time high when hundreds of Valley residents donated time and money to make possible the building of a river sloop like those white-winged ships of the last century that once covered the river from New York to Albany. Exact replica of old-time sloop will sail the Hudson again as a traveling museum.

FAMED SCULPTOR LOUISE NEVELSON'S "Transparent Sculpture IV," the 1968 New York State Award, was given to the Hudson Valley Philharmonic Society by the New York Council on the Arts in recognition of the significant contributions to the material beauty and artistic life in the area made by the Philharmonic.

AND THERE WAS WINE to toast the Philharmonic's success in a new season. Bottles and bottles of the bubbly were opened at Cheese and Wine Party, planned and arranged by Robert Schneller (second from left), Mrs. C. Lincoln Christensen (right), and others.

By JOAN L. WOINOSKI

We were just in time to hear Joe Liguori's rendition of "If I Loved You" Saturday night at his holiday-tinted restaurant. Now we understand why he's Jack Paar's favorite tenor.

There's an obvious repartee between Joe and accompanist, Howard Hotaling, which adds up to icing on a New Year's pastry. Joe's voice is so magnificently powerful we checked mirrors and glassware for cracks from vibrations.

We predict great happenings at Liguori's when that wine cellar-type rathskeller and fireplace are completed. Private parties there will be so private, area swingers will beat a path to the door by way of its own entrance.

On the way from the "Necessary Room" we noticed several autographed photos on the wall of Greer Garson, Roberta Peters, Judy Garland, to name a few. But with all his fame one can tell Joe Liguori is — down deep — a family man. Within five minutes he showed us pictures — which he just happened to have with him — of his three beautiful children. One might say he's a Proud Papa.

When Joe told us he designed and constructed the interior of the restaurant himself PLUS running the business and singing throughout the country, we asked what he did in his spare time. And we found out; he just completed a "plus" on Howard Hotaling's pad. Guess Joe is a pro in more ways than one. All we can say is more power to him in '69.

Things were really "turned on" at Skytop last Saturday. IBM's Purchasing Department — which is a platoon of "with its" — was having a Yule party. And who do you suppose was Old Saint Nick none other than Tillson's Robert Dolan. Bob was a smash but we feared the whole bit would go up in smoke before he did his thing when we spotted his cigar making its way through those bales of white whiskers.

Understand Skytop's owner Bill Brattain is in Mexico. Off the record, Bill is about to add another link to his growing restaurant chain. Couldn't go higher than Skytop, so he's branching out instead; hear it's Midland Mall in Rhode Island this time. But capable partner, Dick Avery, saw to it that everyone was in on the action at the local scene.

A sincere "danke" to our anonymous Santa who surprised this member of the "4th estate" with an elegant red velvet purse, quite the last word. As we don't know who Santa is, we're hoping he'll read "Pot-pourri" and see this little gracios. After all, wasn't it Suzy who said, "If one can't kill two birds with one stone, one might just as well retire one's slingshot!"

P.S. Yours truly was positively crushed because she forgot to gift Bob Saehloff with a never-ending supply of ballpoint pens to sign restaurant checks for 1969.

Going Gourmet

By TOBIE GEERTSEMA

Discovering little out-of-the-way restaurants is a favorite pastime of American diners. Everyone has a friend who cannot recommend too highly the tiny, but totally delightful, eating spot he just happened to stumble upon at the end of a dirt road way out in the country—or the cubbyhole of a place he found on a little-used city street. Always, if we are to believe the story, the food there is unbelievably delicious—and the prices are fantastically low—and the place is dripping with atmospheric charm.

Uncle Chic's in Kingston Plaza could never be said to be out-of-the-way, since it's in one of the busiest shopping centers in town—but it's small enough and filled with such aromatic fragrances of pizza, spaghetti and ravioli to qualify as a "find," if you have not already found it by now.

Open from 11 a.m. to 10 p.m. (and on Fridays until 11 p.m.), Uncle Chic's is run by L. "Chick" Provenzano and that says all one needs to say about the Italian specialties on the menu. It says nothing, however, about how attractive, immaculate and neat this little dining emporium is. The moss green carpet, green flowered wallpaper, soft browns of the wood paneling and tables and chairs, and the lamps that hang in globed clusters, make for pleasant surroundings. To Uncle Chic's credit, the structural aluminum used in abundance is of the buff type with no high gloss shine to distract from the enjoyment of your pepperoni pizza or your baked manicotti.

King Pizza

Pizza reigns supreme here and the place is highly popular with youngsters since it's one of the few restaurants where this delightful concoction is available by the slice. Slices cost only $.30 and medium to large pizzas run the price gamut from $1.50 for medium cheese to $3.75 for Uncle Chic's large special, which can come with cheese, anchovies, sausage, mushrooms, peppers, onions and pepperoni—or combinations of the same.

As a matter of fact, the Pizza Special is the highest priced item on the menu. Most of the Italian specialties (spaghetti with various sauces, ravioli, manicotti, chicken cacciatore, range from a $1.25 low to a $2.50 top). A lengthy sandwich menu and fountain service can keep your bill even lower if you drop by for a snack while shopping.

Pleasant waitresses, amber-colored glasses and ashtrays, scrupulously clean washrooms, and cute placemats for doodlers add to Uncle Chic's appeal. For a real treat, try the home-made rum cake, but be forewarned that it's a popular dessert and sells fast.

Among our other favorites at this delightful little emporium are the Genoa salami and provolone cheese appetizer, just right for warm weather fare, and the special open veal cutlet sandwich with spaghetti, fine for a cold winter's night. And, if you're not in an Italian mood, you can't go wrong with the fried chicken, the cheeseburger special, or the filet of sole.

Concrete Poetry

You're invited to attend a performance by UCCC students and an exhibition by Visual Arts students on Jan. 6 at the Stone Ridge campus of Ulster County Community College. That's when an unusual program and exhibit of Concrete Poetry will be seen in Gallery Hall at the college.

The program will open with an art work display on Jan. 6 to run through Jan. 13. Highlight of the Concrete Poetry sound and form event will come on Jan. 9 at 1:40 p.m. when a performance of poetry in design and sound will be presented by UCCC students. Speech, visual arts, and music scholars in the college's Humanities division are combining their talents in producing this session of sound and design.

Area residents, as well as the staff and students of UCCC, have been invited to view the special performance on Jan. 9 and to visit the exhibit at any time during its run.

The Intermedium

Works presented in this exhibition have crossed the frontier between the various fields of creative activities — poetry, painting, design, voice, sound and music. Says Professor Ruth Muroff, who heads up the Visual Arts series at the college: "Concrete Poetry is a movement of poetry and visual arts falling in the 'intermedium' between semantic poetry, calligraphic and typographic poetry and sound poetry. The poetic elements are de-emphasized in favor of the visual."

The visual elements in the poetry tend to be structured, and often ask to be completed or activated by the reader. The poetry uses direct presentation, semantic, visual and phonetic elements of language as seldom employed by the poets of the past. It was born of the times, as a way of knowing and saying something about the world now, with the techniques and insights of now.

Concrete Poetry is a type of visual poetry which since the end of World War II has had practitioners on all continents including Eugene Gomringer (Switzerland), Dieter Rot (Iceland), Claus Bremer (West Germany), and Emmett Williams (United States).

The visual impact of the work is fresh and vital. The visual serves to heighten the verbal content into a relationship between words.

In this exhibition, the impact of the works cease to be dependent on literary words and literary images, but lies instead in its essence, in the mid-ground between poetry (as a pure medium of expression) and the visual arts (as another such pure medium).

Television

SHOW (CBS, 7:30 p.m.). A repeat of one of last season's better musicals — a boxing story featuring muscular Peter Palmer, the big smiling singer who played the title role in "L'il Abner."

SATURDAY NIGHT MOVIES (NBC, 9 p.m.) Damon Runyon fans are in for a fine treat with "Pocketful of Miracles," starring Bette Davis as Apple Annie and Glenn Ford as her favorite customer, Dave the Dude. Cast also includes Peter Falk, Hope Lange, Thomas Mitchell, Sheldon Leonard, Edward Everett Horton and Barton MacLane.

Sunday, Dec. 29

AFL CHAMPIONSHIP GAME (NBC, 12:30 p.m.). The New York Jets at Shea Stadium playing host to the Oakland Raiders.

NFL CHAMPIONSHIP GAME (CBS, 2:30 p.m.). The Baltimore Colts meet the Cleveland Browns at Cleveland.

1968 NFL-NEA ALL-PRO TEAM (CBS, 6 p.m.). An hour-long special with Charlton Heston hosting and some fine action photography of the 22 players (the 11 best offensive and 11 best defensive stars).

SUNDAY NIGHT MOVIE (ABC, 9 p.m.). "Can-Can" is a big, splashy, tuneful and right-for-the-holidays outing with Cole Porter's music and such stars as Frank Sinatra, Shirley MacLaine, Maurice Chevalier, Louis Jourdan and Juliet Prowse.

SICILY: PORTRAIT OF AN ISLAND (NBC, 10 p.m.). The first film made for TV by noted Italian director Roberto Rossellini. Worth watching because of the realistic and artistic photography.

Monday, Dec. 30

WHITE PAPER: THE ORdeal OF THE AMERICAN CITY (NBC, 9 p.m.). The once colonial Boston, which has recently pioneered some of the best urban renewal programs in the world, and Boston's Mayor Kevin White are featured in the second of a three-part series on the urban crisis.

Tuesday, Dec. 31

TUESDAY NIGHT MOVIES (NBC, 9 p.m.). Shirley Booth won an Oscar for her performance in this film, "Come Back, Little Sheba." Also in the cast of this excellent and moving drama are Burt Lancaster, Terry Moore and Richard Jaeckel.

CBS NEWS CORRESPONDENTS REPORT (CBS, 10 p.m.). Eric Sevareid moderates and Charles Collingwood, David Culhane, Richard Hottelet, Marvin Kalb, Peter Kalischer and Morley Safer review the major news events of 1968 and the prospects for 1969.

Thursday, Jan. 2

MARK TWAIN TONIGHT (CBS, 7:30 p.m.). Repeat of Hal Holbrook in his amazing presentation of Mark Twain. For the first time, this excellent program is not being presented at a late evening hour, but at a time spot that makes it available to children as well as adults. (COMPILED BY T. GEERTSEMA)

Gerardia's Award Winning Print

Helen Gerardia, Woodstock and New York painter and printmaker, is the winner of the Paris Memorial Prize from the American Society of Contemporary Artists 51st Annual at the National Academy of Design. Her lithograph, entitled "Outward" and shown earlier at the Woodstock Artists Association Gallery, was the winning work.

It is now in the collection of the Metropolitan Museum of Art and the New York Hilton Collection, and is on tour in a one-woman exhibit of prints and monotypes that will travel throughout the U.S. during the next two years.

This year, also, the artist won the Boardman Prize for an abstract painting from the Painters and Sculptors Society of New Jersey. This work and three other Gerardia polymers have been picked by the Philadelphia Museum for its Art Lending Service.

The artist's sixth one-woman show at New York's Bodley Gallery this fall was praised for its "skillful and accomplished paintings." Two works from that exhibit are now in the collections of the Ringling Museum in Sarasota, Fla., and the Tampa Bay Art Center Gallery in Tampa, Fla.

Miss Gerardia will shortly give a demonstration of lithography from the stone at the forthcoming Annual of Audubon Artists at the National Academy of Design. Later, she will demonstrate casein painting for the National Association of Painters in Casein at the National Arts Club.

Capital's Art Show a Tradition

An art show that has become a tradition during the month of January up in State Capitaland is being readied once again by the Capital District Conference Art Show Committee. It'll be the sixth annual art show of its kind; will open on the day the Legislature convenes, which is Jan. 8 this year.

The show will be held in the East Corridor on the third floor of the Capitol and will be open to the public without charge every day in January, including Sundays.

Sponsored by the Civil Service Employees Association, the show is open to any State employee who's an active CSEA member in a chapter with membership in the Capital District Conference. Retired members of any member chapter, and members of the immediate families of those eligible may exhibit art works in the show.

Both amateurs and professionals may submit a limit of two canvasses for acceptance by the committee, but they must not exceed four feet by four feet, and should be framed and wired for hanging. Works may be left at the Security Office of the Capitol

Team Up for Record

Lucie Arnaz has joined the recording ranks. The 18-year-old daughter of Lucille Ball, a regular this season on her mother's "Here's Lucy" series for CBS, has teamed with singer Wayne Newton for a duet on a single, "The Whole State of Alabama" for the MGM label.

Downs Leaving Show

NEW YORK (UPI)—Hugh Downs, host of NBC's "Concentration" daytime game show since it began in 1958, leaves it Jan. 3 and will be replaced by Bob Clayton, the program's announcer for five years. Downs remains as host of the "Today" program and will be host for a new series of NBC specials dealing with science.
